America Points Finger At Hanoi

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Tuesday formally accused North Vietnam of an illegal troop and supply buildup as well as assassinations and kidnappings in South Vietnam in violation of the Paris cease-fire accord.

In a note to 10 other nations that agreed to guarantee the Jan. 27 pact, the United States said: "It is abundantly clear that the main obstruction to peace consists of the military activities carried out by the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and forces under its control in South Vietnam."

Specifically, the State Department charged Hanoi with infiltrating more than 30,000 Army personnel into South Vietnam through Laos and Cambodia, sending in anti-aircraft artillery units and ringing the Khe Sanh air field with SA2 missiles, and the clandestine shipment of more than 400 tanks and armored vehicles.

The department said Hanoi has used these forces to attack villages and military positions throughout the country while its agents "have continued their acts of terrorism, including assassinations, tossing grenades in public places, minings of public thoroughfares and widespread abductions."

Of particular concern, the note said, was North Vietnam's failure to provide full information about Americans missing in action in Indochina or known to have died there.

Earlier this month, Hanoi and the Viet Cong accused Washington and South Vietnam of "grave violations" of the agreement. The U.S. reply called the charges "utterly groundless" and said they were an ill-disguised attempt by Hanoi to divert attention from its own violations of the cease-fire.

Meanwhile, in other developments:

1. The State Department confirmed that some 300 Cambodian military personnel are being trained by the United States in Thailand in such aviation techniques as maintenance and radar. John F. King, a spokesman, said the training did not involve "military activity in the classic sense."

2. Saigon offered to release 750 civilian prisoners, and the Viet Cong renewed an offer to release 637 civilians they are holding.

3. In Cambodia, waves of U.S. B52 bombers made their heaviest attacks in weeks around Phnom Penh in an effort to reduce Communist pressure on the capital.

Hanoi radio reported that anti-government forces in Cambodia captured the provincial capital of Takeo, south of Phnom Penh, last Thursday. The government in Phnom Penh made no mention of losing the city.

4. In Laos, the Pathet Lao accused the Laotian government of delaying the formation of a new provisional government by making unreasonable demands.

Will Rogers Clean White House?

... ABC News Says He Will; Sources Deny It In Effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — ABC News reported Tuesday that President Nixon has called upon Secretary of State William P. Rogers to deal with White House problems stemming from the Watergate case. A presidential spokesman denied it.

ABC correspondent Bill Gill said Nixon wants Rogers to help restore "an impeccable integrity" to the White House operation.

Talking with reporters en route to Washington from Key Biscayne, Fla., Tuesday night, White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said there was "no discussion at all along that line" in a telephone conversation between Nixon and Rogers.

Gill, who reported that he had been told Rogers conferred secretly with Nixon in Florida over the weekend, later said that their conversation was by telephone.

Also Tuesday the lawyer for presidential aides John D. Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman was spotted by newsmen first at the White House and later at the office of Watergate prosecutor Earl Silbert.

Sources close to the Senate's Watergate investigation have told The Associated Press that they have evidence indicating Haldeman and Ehrlichman participated in a White House coverup of the facts behind the Watergate wiretapping.

Ehrlichman and former Nixon campaign chief Clark MacGregor engaged in a public disagreement over whether Ehrlichman had asked for an internal investigation of the campaign organization last August when the Watergate affair was unfolding.

"I proposed not only to the campaign manager but to the whole campaign planning group that the time was right to make the fullest disclosure about Watergate," Ehrlichman was quoted as saying.

MacGregor replied that "at no time during the months of August 1972 did any Nixon administration official request MacGregor to conduct any Watergate investigation."

The differing accounts provided another example of the growing splits developing among top administration officials in connection with the Watergate case.

The Florida White House said Tuesday that President Nixon wasn't involved in making an offer of executive clemency which Watergate burglar James McCord Jr. has testified he received through intermediaries.

In other developments Tuesday:

A lawyer for the Nixon campaign said a second batch of tardy finance records was being prepared for delivery to court officials. Delivery had been promised last November, but lawyer Daniel Webster Coon said Nixon campaign deputy Frederick C. LaRue told him by letter on Monday that 10 more manila envelopes, labeled "bank records" had turned up in a bottom file drawer. Common Cause lawyers have asked that Nixon finance officials be cited for contempt of the delayed delivery.

Lawyers for Common Cause subpoenaed the chief of U.S. Archives for more records of secret Nixon campaign finances they believe have been hidden there. A government spokesman said the subpoena was being studied.

Suit Filed By NCLU In Arrest At Aurora

The Nebraska Civil Liberties Union Tuesday filed a suit in U.S. District Court in Lincoln alleging that an Aurora man was illegally arrested after he knocked on the door of an Aurora home and that he was held illegally for 11 hours.

The suit seeks a total of $130,000 in damages.

Named as plaintiff in the suit filed by NCLU cooperating attorney John Stevens Berry was Paul Eckerson. Defendants in the suit are Ronald L. Brown, a Nebraska State Patrol trooper, Hamilton County Sheriff William G. Schultz and Hamilton County Deputy Sheriff Dale Radcliff.

The suit alleges that Eckerson knocked on the door of the Joseph Leininger home in Aurora on Nov. 3, 1972. The suit alleges that Brown opened the door, grabbed Eckerson by the arm and coat and pulled him into the home.

Then, the suit claims, Eckerson was "forcibly compelled" to completely disrobe.

Later, the suit alleges, Eckerson was handcuffed and taken to the Hamilton County Jail in Aurora where he was "detained against his will and without warrant or probable cause for 11 hours."

The suit contends that the alleged false arrest and imprisonment violated rights against unreasonable seizure guaranteed by Amendments Four and Fourteen of the U.S. Constitution.

In addition, the suit alleges, Eckerson was "unlawfully and forcibly assaulted" in violation of rights of due process of law guaranteed by Articles Four and Five of the Constitution.

The suit claims that the defendant's investigation of the facts surrounding Eckerson's detention was "inadequate to such a degree that it" amounted to gross and culpable negligence.

Ralls Charged With First Degree Murder

Thomas Ralls Jr., 24, Tuesday was charged with first degree murder in connection with the fatal stabbing of a fellow inmate, Irvin Cooper, 37, at the Nebraska State Penal Complex last Friday.

Judge Ralph Slocum set a preliminary hearing date for May 1. No plea was entered. Ralls was represented by Lancaster County Public Defender Clement Gaughan.

Cooper was stabbed Friday morning in the serving area of the prison cafeteria. An eight-inch, homemade stainless steel knife was found on another inmate during a shakedown immediately after the incident.

Cooper was stabbed at least once in the chest, according to Nebraska Penal Complex Warden Charles Wolff Jr. Cooper was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Thomas Ralls had entered the penal complex only the evening before the stabbing to begin serving a 10 to 15 year sentence for the robbery of a Lincoln family.

Exon Calls Okay Hasty

... Wants Need Shown

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday vetoed acquisition of the defunct Hiram Scott College in Scottsbluff by the University of Nebraska in light of hasty approval by the Legislature which Exon said abandoned sound planning for expediency.

While he stressed that he is not unalterably opposed to Sen. Terry Carpenter's proposal, Exon said the acquisition of a fourth NU campus first must be shown to fit into the state's future educational needs.

As yet, no such need has been proven, Exon said.

In his four-page veto message — his sixth this session — Exon expressed doubts about duplication of efforts at other colleges and campuses, possible detrimental effects on enrollment at Chadron State College and hidden costs incurred in such an acquisition.

LB179 would have permitted the state to acquire part of the Hiram Scott campus valued at $1 million free of charge from Scottsbluff-area residents. However, another $4 million worth of dormitories and food facilities would not be included in the deal.

University of Nebraska officials backed the proposal and planned to use the campus for agriculture and rural health studies.

The bill was approved by the Legislature last week by 25-21 vote in the face of opposition from numerous rural chambers of commerce around the state who felt Hiram Scott would add unneeded competition for the education dollar.

It will require at least 5 more supporting votes to override Exon's veto.

Carpenter, of Scottsbluff, said he would "probably" seek an override attempt of Exon's veto.

The Legislature is currently in an Easter recess and will not reconvene until next week.

When asked if he thought he could muster the 30 votes necessary for the override, Carpenter said: "I don't anticipate anything. I didn't anticipate this (the veto)."

The Kearney Chamber of Commerce had actively opposed passage of the measure and launched a statewide campaign.

Carpenter said the "people in Kearney ought to be happy" with Exon's veto.

In suggesting that "the cart may have been placed in front of the horse," Exon outlined an evaluation procedure for possible future acquisition, including:

- a "realistic" plan for the campus.
- enrollment projections.
- an assessment of the availability of jobs for graduates of the program.
- cost projections for at least the next five years.

Contrary to what supporters have said about the new campus being a "gift," Exon noted that funds would be needed immediately for insurance, security and upkeep of the buildings even before a curriculum has been established. The bill provided no funds for operation during fiscal 1974.

Nor he said is he convinced that the curriculum would not be merely a duplication of courses at other colleges.

"Generalities have been expounded, but hard facts are non-existent. The sound business-like approach has been abandoned for expediency," he said.

Exon's other misgivings about the acquisition include continued declines in the birth rate, dormitory financing problems at the state colleges and the matter of the dorms at Hiram Scott.

"The possible acquisition of the dormitory and food service facilities ... should be resolved before any final determination on the Hiram Scott proposal. It has been assumed that these key facilities can be obtained 'later' at a fraction of their present indebtedness.

"The future financing of high education in the state should not and must not be interlarded with the enhancement of the equity of private bondholders on the now-defunct ... institution."

Charge Man, Woman With Slaying Trooper

Lexington (AP) — A man and a woman accused in the shooting death of a Nebraska State Patrol trooper were charged with first degree murder Tuesday and ordered held without bond pending a May 25 preliminary hearing.

District County Judge George Bigelow remanded Jimmy Ray Anderson, 29, and Terry Anderson, 24, without bond to the custody of Dawson County Sheriff John Rohnert. The two, who gave their latest address as Omaha, reportedly are formerly of Sedalia, Mo.

Lexington attorney E. A. Cook III has been appointed to represent the pair at county expense.

They are accused in the shooting death last Friday of trooper George Amos Jr., 28. Amos was shot in the face with his own service revolver after stopping a car he reported was traveling erratically on Interstate 80 west of Lexington.

Col. James Kruger, patrol superintendent, said when Amos did not respond to a radio call, another trooper went to the scene and found Amos dead in the front seat of his cruiser.

Kruger said Amos' .357 magnum was found in the Andersons' possession after their car was stopped following a chase that ended in a field near Gothenburg when the fleeing vehicle was rammed by a patrol car.

Pettis County, Missouri authorities said the couple has felony charges pending in Sedalia and was free on $1,000 bond each. A preliminary hearing has been set for April 30.

County Engineer Injured In Crash

County Engineer Walter Hoppe, 73, of 2120 Bradford Dr., was listed in satisfactory condition Tuesday in the intensive care unit of the Kansas University Medical Center for injuries he suffered Saturday in an automobile accident four miles west of Chillicothe, Missouri.

Hoppe had earlier been listed in serious condition.

According to a spokesman for the Missouri Highway Patrol, Hoppe sustained compound fractures of both legs, as well as arm and chest injuries when the car he was driving was involved in a two-car, head-on crash on Hwy. 36.

Mrs. Pauline Hoppe, 69, the only passenger in the Hoppe auto, was treated at the Hedrick Medical Center in Chillicothe for lacerations and released. Walter Hoppe was also treated at the Hedrick center, but later was transferred to the KU Medical Center in Kansas City, Kan.

Thomas Gutgell, 46, of Chillicothe, driver of the other auto, was hospitalized at the University of Missouri Medical Center in Columbia for critical head injuries he received in the crash. He had also been transferred from the Hedrick Medical Center.

According to the Missouri Highway Patrol, Gutgell, west-bound on Hwy. 36, had just passed an auto and was returning to his own lane when he collided with a pickup truck ahead of the auto he was passing.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said Gutgell's auto then veered into the eastbound lane of Hwy. 36 where it collided head-on with Hoppe's auto.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoppe were apparently driving to Columbia, Mo., to visit their daughter, Mrs. Zane Dewey.

Goodyear Night Shift Goes 'Out'

The 11 p.m. shift at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.'s Lincoln plant didn't report for work Tuesday night when negotiators in Ohio failed to reach agreement on a new contract.

According to Bob Wallen, vice president of United Rubber Workers Local 286, the union was "out" and would stay out till "some agreement" is reached.

The Lincoln belting and hose plant employs about 1,880 persons, 1,550 of them URW members.

The strike began at 11 p.m., the extended deadline for renewing a company-wide contract covering 23,000 Goodyear employees in 16 plants.

The three-year contract was to have expired at midnight last Friday, but was extended to midnight Tuesday (11 p.m. Lincoln time).

Goodyear and union representatives had been negotiating in Cincinnati, Ohio, since March 12 to renew the contract.

Tornadoes Hit
South, Injure 45

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes and savage winds mangled nearly a dozen communities and injured some 45 persons Tuesday in Mississippi, Arkansas and Texas.

A twister tore into an elementary school near Sumner, Miss., injuring 37 pupils and a schoolteacher. Two more children were hurt when high winds struck another school near Greenwood.

Most of the injuries were minor. No fatalities were reported.

Students at Delta State College in Cleveland, Miss., were ushered out of classrooms during 45 minutes of violent weather.

"Things are pretty much in a state of confusion here," a spokesman at Sumner said.

Teachers at the elementary school said the youngsters had practiced a tornado drill only minutes before the storm hit.

House trailers, trees and utility poles were bowled over in parts of the Mississippi Delta in the northern section of the state.

Funnels swirled across southern Arkansas, ripping into Texarkana, Genoa, Mount Holly, Dumas and Tillar. Five persons were injured.

The twisters moved in on the heels of a system of thunderstorms that dumped up to four inches of rain and piled up five inches of hailstones around Odessa and Midland in Texas.

Texarkana, straddling the border of Texas and Arkansas, was hit in the west and southeast, possibly by the same tornado.

Several service stations, a mobile home sales area and a shopping center received the brunt. Large pine and oak trees were uprooted, toppling onto dwellings and blocking streets and highways.

Three parked planes were destroyed at the municipal airport near Shamrock in the Texas Panhandle. Another funnel touched between Abilene and Winters, tearing up several barns.

Tornado watches remained out in 73 counties in Texas as well as parts of northern Louisiana and southern Arkansas.

Meanwhile, scattered thunderstorms and showers splashed into flood-stricken areas in Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas and Alabama.

They also moved across the South Atlantic Coast states. One inch of rain fell in Athens, Ga., and Columbia, S.C.

Up to three inches of snow blanketed parts of South Dakota and Minnesota.

Fair weather prevailed from the southwestern mountains across the plateau region to the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley.

Mississippi, Tributaries
Keep Rising

By The Associated Press

Swollen by heavy spring rains, the waters of the Mississippi River and its tributaries kept rising Tuesday, driving hundreds of families from their homes and flooding thousands of acres of farmland.

Thousands of people already have been forced to evacuate their homes, entire crops have been wiped out, and large areas of farmland are completely under water because of spring floods along the mid-section of America. Damage estimates are in the millions.

The Mississippi was expected to hit a record 43.5 feet when it crests at St. Louis on Thursday and more than 1,700 National Guardsmen were activated to battle flood waters in eastern Missouri.

"There has never been a flood this high on that section of the river," said Maj. Gen. Charles C. Noble, head of the Mississippi River Commission.

The river already has crested twice at St. Louis — once March 17 and once April 6. The Army Corps of Engineers estimated after the April crest that flood waters caused $40 million in damage.

Authorities said Tuesday that the floods had been responsible for eight deaths in the St. Louis area. The latest victims were Barbara Stuart, 11, and her sister Lori, 9, of South Roxana, Ill., who drowned Monday night while wading in Indian Creek.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said 35 state and county highways were closed because of high water.

Noble said he didn't have an estimate of the number of homeless along the entire 2,000-mile stretch of the Mississippi.

"God knows how many there are," he said. "A couple of weeks ago I made a guess of 6,000, but I've flown up and down this river many times and it's got to be a lot more people than that because I can see so many houses down there where no one could live now."

In South St. Louis, where the River Des Peres was backed up because of high water from the Mississippi, Cletus Leeds watched as his furniture was hauled from his house.

Leeds moved out of his home two weeks ago because of a flood threat. Then, he took only his clothes. When he returned, he found 6 1/2 feet of water in the basement. He had the house pumped out and was ready to move in Saturday when the waters started to rise again.

"I've been here 15 years and I'll move back," he vowed Tuesday. "I own it. I can't afford another."

The American Red Cross estimated that 6,000 families in Missouri and Illinois have been affected by the floods. A Coast Guard spokesman said many of those have been evacuated by boat, "only taking along a suitcase or two."

Beef Still Contains Banned Hormone

WASHINGTON (AP) — Residues of a cancer-causing hormone still are showing up in meat, three months after the government banned the hormone from cattle feed but permitted implanting it in ears.

Permitting cancer-causing additives in food is forbidden by federal law.

In banning the hormone diethylstilbestrol, or DES, from feed, the Food and Drug Administration had hoped to eliminate residues.

An FDA spokesman said the agency's investigation of residues found since the ban has failed to establish why they showed up.

A residue testing program, set up by the Agriculture Department to study a cross-section of the nation's beef supply, showed that 0.6 per cent of meat samples taken this year through March showed evidence of DES.

The level was down from 2 per cent in 1972, but comparable to the 0.5 per cent found in 1971.

Dr. Charles C. Edwards, former FDA commissioner, said in 1971 that any incidence of residues at a rate over 0.5 per cent would force the agency to re-evaluate its controls.

Rep. L. H. Fountain, D-N.C., whose subcommittee has been receiving the residue reports regularly, said he is greatly concerned over the persistence of the residues.

"It is regrettable that the public is being exposed unnecessarily to a cancer-causing substance in the face of a steadily rising cancer death rate," he said.

"While we do not presently have proof that chemicals like DES, which produce cancer in test animals, are responsible for the increasing percentage of human deaths attributable to cancer, it is obviously both prudent and highly desirable that we avoid any unnecessary exposure to them."

DES had been linked to a rate of vaginal cancer in the daughters of women who took the drug during pregnancy. It also has been blamed for cancer in test animals.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has estimated that a total ban on DES, which is used to fatten cattle faster, would tack an extra 3 1/2 cents on the price of a pound of beef.

DES had been used in the feed of about 80 per cent of the nation's beef cattle before the FDA banned that use last August, giving the industry until Jan. 1 to work off existing supplies.

The FDA permitted cattle growers to continue using DES suppositories in cattle's ears. The hormone works into the steer's system as the suppository dissolves.

The FDA required beef growers, however, to wait 120 days after implanting the suppository before marketing the cattle. The agency said the Agriculture Department would experiment to determine whether any DES remained in a steer's system after that time.

"If any residue of DES is found in liver or kidneys 120 days after implant, all approval of DES for this use will immediately be withdrawn," the FDA said in December.

Last month the Agriculture Department provided the FDA with the results of its experiment. It showed that some form of hormone remained in beef livers and kidneys after 120 days.

The Agriculture Researchers did not definitely identify the hormonal activity as DES, however.

"As far as we're concerned, we're reporting there was some material identified," said an Agriculture scientist. "How much of that material is DES we don't know."

The scientist said hormonal activity was found in the livers of all three cattle in the experiment after 120 days. The highest level was 0.7 parts per billion.

The FDA has acknowledged receipt of the Agriculture study but declines comment on it. A spokesman said FDA expects to make an announcement on DES later this week.

natural gas well behaved responsible for an outbreak of blowholes in this deserted northern Michigan village.

A state official described the situation as "stabilized" meaning no new blowholes since Saturday. But he said there has been an increase in the flow of gas from existing blowholes and he warned of the possibility that gas might seep underground as far as Traverse City, a city of 18,000 about 15 miles west of here.

Meanwhile, 63 families evacuated from Williamsburg and Acme Township, three or four miles to the west, were staying with friends and relatives or in temporary housing provided by the American Red Cross. They represent about half the town's population of 450.

The sudden, inexplicable gas eruptions started last Wednesday and have filled the town with deadly fumes.

Kissinger Talk Compared To Marshall Plan Speech

•The New York Times

By JAMES RESTON
New York — Henry A. Kissinger, in a policy statement obviously approved by President Nixon, has sent a message to Europe that can be compared historically only to the famous Marshall Plan speech of Secretary of State George C. Marshall at Harvard almost 26 years ago.

The differences are greater than the similarities, but Kissinger, like Marshall, recognized that the United States and Europe had reached another critical point in their relationships, and in his address to The Associated Press, Kissinger asked Europe the same philosophic questions.

Is there not something beyond material and national interests to hold America, Europe and Japan together? Should we not try to define the common political interests and ideals of the old and the new world. Rather than leaving things to the experts on money, trade, and tariffs?

Like Marshall, Kissinger suggested a common discussion of common problems among major trading nations, not an American diktat for solving everything. He made some suggestions to Europe and Japan, but he did not try to impose them.

The Same Point
The Marshall speech, looking back on it now, was very thin and almost superficial, but Marshall hit the same point as Kissinger: The United States recognizes that all the Western nations are getting into trouble, and it wants to help, but it can't solve things in Washington.

"It is already evident," Marshall said in June 1947, "that, before the United States government can proceed much further... there must be some agreement among the countries of Europe as to the requirements of the situation and the part those countries themselves will take in order to give proper effect to whatever action might be taken by this (the U.S.) government."

"It would be neither fitting nor efficacious," Marshall added, "for this government to undertake to draw up unilaterally a program... The role of this country should consist of friendly aid... The program should be a joint one, agreed to by a number, if not all European nations."

Kissinger talked here in New York in the same vein. The days of the Marshall Plan approach to American-European relations are over, he suggested. The successes of the past have created new contemporary problems. Europe is no longer a weak beneficiary of American aid, but a powerful new competitor, and while Kissinger recognized all the commercial problems involved, he stuck to Marshall's principle that there has to be a new Atlantic partnership or there is going to be great trouble for everybody in the world.

Kissinger never mentioned Marshall to his AP audience. In fact, while he was asking Europe to recognize that it had reached another historic point in its relations with the United States, and was asking Europe to come back with suggestions for a new Atlantic Charter or partnership, he emphasized how much harder it would now be to get together.

By Common Ideals?
The United States and Europe cooperated a generation ago through fear: Can they now get together by common ideals? Kissinger conceded that this would be much more difficult. A generation ago, the United States was offering to help a Europe devastated by World War II; now it is suggesting cooperation or partnership with a recovered, powerful and competitive Europe.

Also, Kissinger noted, the United States has to think of worldwide interests, while Europe tends to think of "regional interests."

"The Atlantic nations," he said, "must find a solution for the management of their diversity, to serve the common objectives which underline their unity. We can no longer afford to pursue national or regional self-interest without a unifying framework. We cannot hold together if each country or region asserts its autonomy whenever it is to its benefit and invokes unity to curtail the independence of others."

Also, there were some diplomatic but unmistakable warnings in this Kissinger speech. He reminded the European allies that after Vietnam, there was a spirit of retrenchment, nationalism and protectionism in the United States, that the American government would not desert its allies, but expected them to share the burden of a common defense.

This was, in the best sense of the expression, a "presidential speech," defining the problems of the coming years as asking Europe to respond to the offer of "partnership," shared burdens and fair economic competition, or face the consequences of American nationalism and protectionism.

Proposals Coming
In this sense, and probably only in this sense, Kissinger's address could be compared to Marshall's at Harvard. He was telling the European governments that within a few weeks, Nixon would put before them formal proposals for a new partnership of the non-communist industrial nations, and that these proposals would confront them with very hard choices about money, trade and defense.

But before these practical questions are handed over to the technicians, and they begin squabbling about dollars, interest rates, tariffs and all the other things that divide the nations, maybe somebody ought to think about the political and philosophic questions that America, Europe and Japan have in common.

At the end of his speech, Kissinger dealt with the editors' questions about Watergate and its effect on foreign policy. He ducked most of them, but asked for perspective and compassion: this is a hard time both at home and abroad; it is easy to divide over practical economic or personal problems, but after Watergate, the nation has to go on.

Also, after the present squabbles between the nations over money and trade, he said, there is still the problem of trying to create a new order in the world, and this is what the administration is trying to do in the midst of all its troubles.

Kissinger's was a solemn speech, not the sort of thing that delights most newspaper gatherings. But there was a sense in the Waldorf dining room that this was not merely a luncheon address but a basic statement of national policy at a difficult time at home and a critical period in the relations between the United States, Europe and Japan.

It was quite an occasion. Kissinger knew that everybody in his audience was thinking about Watergate—and somehow he managed to deal with it with compassion for its culprits and victims—but mainly he managed to bring the great questions of the nation to the fore, and demonstrate what a serious man can do when he thinks and speaks about the fundamental questions before the nation.

Brazil Makes 1st Devaluation

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil (AP) — Brazil devalued the cruzeiro, setting the buying rate at 6.060 per U.S. dollar and the selling rate at 6.100.

It was the first devaluation and the second readjustment of the cruzeiro this year.

Disclosure Of Installment Charges Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Tuesday upheld a tough federal requirement for disclosure of installment buying charges in a major test of the effectiveness of the 1968 Consumer Credit Protection Act.

The act, also known as the truth-in-lending law, authorized the Federal Reserve Board to set regulations "to assure a meaningful disclosure of credit terms."

The board decreed that disclosure of the total purchase price, the balance due after the initial payment and all additional charges must be disclosed on purchases paid for in more than four installments to prevent hidden finance charges. "Congress was clearly aware that merchants could evade the reporting requirements of the act by concealing credit charges," wrote Chief Justice Warren E. Burger for the court. Congress emphasized the board's authority to prevent such evasion, Burger continued, placing regulations such as the "four-installment rule" within its lawful power.

The dispute that brought the question to the court centered on the installment purchase of magazine subscriptions by a Dade County, Fla., widow. The decision, however, will have impact in other areas of the $100-billion-plus consumer credit industry that are reached by the board's rule.

Justices William O. Douglas,

William H. Rehnquist and Potter Stewart agreed with the majority that the rule should be upheld, but said in a partial dissent that the case should be sent back to the lower court to determine if the magazine subscription firm, Family Publications Inc., actually extended credit within the meaning of the law.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. flatly dissented saying the act was not applicable. Leila Mourning stopped paying for the magazine and took her case to court in 1969 and a federal district judge held the company did not meet disclosure requirements. The U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans, however, invalidated the four-installment rule. It was beyond the board's authority, said the circuit court, and violated due process guarantees of the Constitution.

The NAACP Legal Defense Fund brought Mrs. Mourning's case to the high court. Fund lawyers, joined by the government, claimed the rule was necessary if the act was to be effective.

Burger said there was no denial of due process because there was no presumption that finance charges were being made. Rather, he said, the board has placed a blanket requirement on installment sellers "in order to discourage evasion by a substantial portion..."

Britain, W. Germany Hail Kissinger Call

LONDON (AP) — Britain and West Germany welcomed Henry A. Kissinger's call for a new Atlantic Charter but judgment was reserved in France, where press reaction to the U. S. presidential adviser's plan ranged from skepticism to hostility.

Kissinger's call, made Monday in a speech to The Associated Press annual meeting, was described Tuesday as constructive by the British government. Bonn expressed appreciation for his statement, which based future U.S.-European relations on a continued American military presence in Europe.

In Paris, however, the French Foreign Ministry said it had yet to receive a text of the speech and reaction — if there is any — will not come for a few days.

All the Paris papers commented on the speech which received front page coverage in most of them. In an editorial, Le Figaro predicted London and Bonn would welcome the proposals but warned, "It is less certain that France will welcome them without reserve. Paris has always regarded with great suspicion any alliance which may appear like that between the wolf and the lamb because of the specific weight of the principal partner."

than that of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Kissinger outlined in his speech a blueprint for a revitalized alliance. He said Washington was making "an appeal for a joint effort" to agree upon common objectives.

"The historic opportunity for this generation is to build a new structure of international relations for the decades ahead," he said.

President Nixon's chief foreign policy adviser noted that the President is holding summits this year with European leaders on political, military and economic issues.

The British Foreign Office commented: "This is clearly an important speech, with a constructive intent which we will study closely with our European allies."

"We particularly welcome the acknowledgment of the concept of a united Europe working cooperatively with the United States, and the recognition of the roles of Japan and Canada."

In Bonn a spokesman for Chancellor Willy Brandt's government said the Kissinger speech included "clear support for European unity."

The spokesman welcomed Kissinger's statement of U.S. readiness to contribute further toward European security.

The West German government spokesman, Armin Gruenewald said Brandt's government would study other parts of Kissinger's speech before commenting on them.

Gruenewald said Bonn would carefully study these ideas before giving a reaction.

He Blew The Whistle

Frank Wills, the security guard who discovered the now infamous Watergate break-in last June 17, is now working as a security guard in another Washington office building. It was Wills' chance discovery of a piece of tape on a Watergate basement door latch that led to the arrest of five men in the break-in at Democratic National Committee offices.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

We cannot recall an election in which the recommendation of candidates has been as difficult as it is for the upcoming general showdown. Going down the list of candidates for the City Council and Board of Education leaves you pretty well scratching your head for an answer in which you have complete confidence.

The six nominees for the council are Mrs. Sue Bailey, John Robinson, Emmett Junge, Mrs. Nancy Childs, Max Denney and William Thierstein. That was the order of their finish in the primary election and would be acceptable as an order of finish in the general.

To change that order requires one to come up with rather intangible reasons and we might do so only in the case of Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Childs. Mrs. Childs might be a little more open-minded on zoning matters than Mrs. Bailey, especially in the matter of the opening of Stevens Creek for development.

Stevens Creek, in our opinion, should be opened as quickly as possible and that does not mean sitting around waiting for the pressure to become unbearable. Rather, it means beginning immediately to do those things that will permit this to happen, at the latest, in 1974.

However, our preference for Mrs. Childs over Mrs. Bailey, admittedly, is a slight one and we would not want to unduly influence the voters as between the two. Robinson is perhaps as strong a zoning advocate as there is running but we feel that as a black, as a young candidate and as a man from a modest economic background, he ought to represent a large range of people who should be represented.

Emmett Junge, the dean of candidates at age 68, is unmatched in the field for experience. Some may hold the age factor against him but he is as young as 68 as you will ever meet — alert, active and interested in all respects.

Junge may be viewed by some, also, as an establishment candidate and likely would come as close to it as any of the names on the ballot. But this former city administrator is easy to talk to, will listen attentively to anyone and has no sociological or economic prejudices.

Junge would vote his convictions and those convictions might as often be with the worker in the Burlington shops as with the downtown business or professional executive.

Denney would certainly be an acceptable candidate but he has seemed a little weak during the campaign in making clear his approach to problems, both specifically and in a general sense. Thierstein, too, would be acceptable but he lacks the experience background held by most other candidates.

In the Board of Education race, the primary finish was Louis L. Roper, Ted Dewey (the incumbent), Pearl R. Goldenstein, Wallace M. Rudolph, Martin A. Dinsmore and Robert L. Rauch.

Once again, that order of finish in the general election would assure the people of the Lincoln School District of capable individuals on this important job. But so would any other order of finish among the six nominees.

It is, perhaps, even more presumptuous in this race to make recommendations than in the council contest but we would again make a suggestion. We believe Rudolph to be an individual of unusual insight, conviction and determination and would, therefore, recommend him for one of the three board vacancies.

As an incumbent who has done a creditable job, Dewey merits election to the position he was first appointed to. Voters would not go wrong with any of the other four candidates as a final third choice.

The fortunate thing is that there simply can't be an unfortunate outcome in either the council or board race.

RICHARD L. WORSNOP Oregonians To Vote May 1 On School-Financing Plan

WASHINGTON — Almost everyone supports equal opportunity in public education — in principle. Far fewer are willing to pay the price of providing it, as the long struggle over school desegregation amply demonstrates.

Now the stress has shifted from racial to fiscal inequality in the public schools, and the battle rages as before. When the U.S. Supreme Court handed down its landmark school desegregation decision in 1954, it asserted that "the opportunity of an education . . . must be made available to all on equal terms."

In the same spirit, the California Supreme Court held in 1971 that the state's system of financing public schools largely through local property taxes violated the 14th Amendment's equal-protection clause.

Civil libertarians were convinced that a case like that in California eventually would reach the U.S. Supreme Court, and they were right. The court agreed to review a suit brought by Demetrio P. Rodriguez, a Mexican-American civil service worker from San Antonio, Texas. "Rodriguez is the best school case in the country," said David Long of the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law. "Real people in a real school district, members of a minority group, getting screwed by the state."

Long's optimism was misplaced. In its opinion in the Rodriguez case, handed down on March 21, the Supreme Court ruled that state laws for financing public services should not be declared unconstitutional "merely because the burdens or benefits thereof fall unevenly, depending upon the relative wealth of the political subdivisions in which citizens live."

The net effect of the Rodriguez decision was to leave the matter of public-school financing in the hands of the states. Many, perhaps most, will continue to rely on locally levied property taxes. Still, some states appear receptive to the idea of reform. Under a plan approved by the Oregon legislature in March, the state government would assume virtually all public-school operating costs. The measure will be voted upon in a special election May 1.

The Oregon plan calls for virtual elimination of local residential property taxes for schools and provides for the state to pay 95% of operating expenses. The money would come from a 32% increase in personal income taxes, higher corporate taxes, a business-profits tax, and a statewide tax on income-producing property.

The school-financing debate involves more than just educational quality. Property values tend to be low in a city such as Jersey City because property tax rates are high. And property values are high in suburban Milburn, N.J., partly because rates are low. Thus, any move to equalize tax rates might have a similar effect on market values.

A Coin Flip May Decide

George Wallace likes to say that there isn't a dime's worth of difference between the Democratic and Republican parties. In many ways, since the time of the New Deal revolution, that is true.

There is an unbridgeable gap between doctrinaire liberals and conservatives and the two competing philosophic views have found homes in opposite parties. But on many issues, there isn't a dime's worth of difference between moderate to liberal Democrats and liberal Republicans and between conservative Democrats and the Republican majority.

A current view is that parties have run out of gas as ideological proponents. That view is apparently held by former Treasury Secretary John Connally of Texas, who, it seems, regards a political party as little more than a vehicle to personal power.

It is said that President Nixon has smiled on Connally, and thus the Texan is regarded as the frontrunner for the GOP presidential nomination in 1976. The frontrunner at least until Spiro Agnew throws caution to the wind. The key, of course, is Connally's switch in party registration from Democrat to Republican.

A breakdown of the voting last week on the state budget shows that three of every four state senators whose terms expire with next year's election voted to enact Gov. Exon's operational budget bill without change.

The votes tend to uphold the prediction that there would be more pussyfooting around than usual this session, because of incumbents feeling the pressure of the election coming up next year. The roll call count on final enactment of the bill showed 18 of the 24 senators whose terms are ending voted to pass the bill. Of course such figures should be handled with care. Among the 18 undoubtedly are some who under any circumstance would desire a budget as bare-boned as the governor's — or even more penurious.

But many of the votes were motivated by a political factor appropriate at election time: the desire not to allow the governor to wear the mantle of economy in isolated splendor.

All senators who rubber-stamped the governor's budget — whether up for re-election or not — should be taken to task for their actions. And not for endorsing frugality, but for abdicating responsibility.

It was a miserable show put on by the Legislature last week. The electorate should be reminded of it at every opportunity. The failure to go over the governor's budget item by item, as Speaker Richard Proulx and others wanted, or to review the budget committee's recommendations, is suggestive of a slough-of-thought not tolerated by private employers. The public should be equally intolerant of such inactivity by its employees.

It says something of the public mood, as a very discerning John Connally reads it, that he feels he can labor so long and openly over his indecision.

Economics And Cake Mix

CHICAGO — The whole idea of boycotting meat looks a lot different — and a lot less advisable — in livestock country than it does from the militant consumer platforms of Washington, D.C. A visit to the big meat states, especially Texas, Iowa, Illinois, and Nebraska, convinced me that many of the pseudo-housewives brainstorming the boycott don't know their agricultural economics from their instant-cake mix — and don't care. Ultimately, the law of supply and demand may prove boycotts counter-productive, and drive prices up, but the "consumer chic" set will have its fun.

Consider the example of Mrs. Ethel Rosen, of Wilmette, Ill., a leader of the "Women's War on Prices," who testified in Washington two weeks ago that meat prices ought to be drastically rolled back. Earlier, farmers in McLean County, Ill., hearing Mrs. Rosen on the radio, decided, as one man put it, that "she definitely needs some information on livestock production: how much it costs to feed (a young calf), give it medicine — how much it is costing to produce this calf for market." So the farmers offered to pay Mrs. Rosen's airfare to Bloomington, the McLean County seat, but she reportedly left for Washington without returning their phone calls.

Wilmette is one of Chicago's — and the country's — richest suburbs, and I think that elements of the meat boycott, like last year's faddish anti-lettuce binge, go beyond economics to a kind of "chic" couched in pro-consumer terminology but also influenced by an elite cultural apathy toward agricultural producers. After all, how many boycott types are really fundamentally concerned with consumer prices? The liberal-staged lettuce boycott was essentially designed to push growers into the hands of Cesar Chavez and his highly paid (but oh so chic) Farm Workers Union, thereby boosting consumer prices. Besides, hostility to agricultural producers occurs in other ways: incessant carping about the treatment of migratory labor (with scarcely a concern for crops left rotting in the field when pickers aren't available at an economic rate), plus movies like "Billy Jack" that portray ranchers as economic thugs.

Consumer chic is a kissing cousin of environmental extremism, and they stem from the same myopic affluent middle-class belief that the economics of grubby blue-collar workers or manure-sodden farmers can be disregarded when inconvenient. Which, of course, is a lot of nonsense. Environmental extremism has already contributed to the energy crisis, and consumer chic could very well create a meat crisis.

Let's suppose that the May meat boycott is successful. The consequences could be counter-productive indeed. Dr. Frank Baker, chairman of the Animal Science Department at the University of Nebraska, predicts that a 10% drop in meat consumption would spell local economic catastrophe:

"Many cities in Nebraska and Iowa are deeply tied economically to meat production, processing and distributing as was Seattle, Wash. to the aircraft industry . . . Reduction of beef consumption by 10% nationally could result in a loss of about $300,000,000 in business and economic activity in Nebraska alone in the next year and would have a greater impact on Texas and Iowa."

Raising cattle can be a precarious business. The fluke April snowstorm that hit Illinois, Iowa, and Nebraska two weeks ago, killing a lot of young calves, underscored the hazards in the minds of already angry farmers. Besides which, agricultural producers, like everyone else, are being whip-sawed by across-the-board inflation: farm costs — from tractors to feed — have Three significant and interrelated issues are involved in Charter Amendment No. 2 to be voted on in the city's general election. These are the reconsideration of the Northeast Radial, new and improved planning procedures for all major roadway projects within the city, and — perhaps most important of all — the question of responsiveness and flexibility of our city government to changing conditions and human concerns.

Foremost among these in the minds of many people is a thorough reconsideration of the Northeast Radial project, taking fully into account the social and environmental effects of this proposed freeway. This should be done. In the face of mounting concern with the environment and a looming energy crisis involving possible shortages of gasoline, it is unthinkable that we should continue to go ahead with a freeway project geared to the attitudes of the 1950's rather than the 1970's.

Charter Amendment No. 2 would make such a review and reconsideration mandatory, including an estimate of the total direct costs of the project and development of a fiscal plan to provide for the funds needed. It is estimated that the radial will cost at least $30 million and probably more. There are some who argue that in any event, the radial project is due for a total review; hence the Charter Amendment is not necessary. Maybe so. But in view of the footdragging by the city and the apparent unwillingness of city officials most directly involved in its planning (Journal-Star, Feb. 25) to reassess the assumptions used for its justification, this is doubtful. The only sure way to get a reappraisal of the radial is by adoption of the amendment.

It has been argued by the Mayor and others that the amendment might block any street or highway improvement in Lincoln, including projects now underway. This is largely a red herring, aimed at diverting attention from the fact that the amendment will require that social, economic, and environmental effects be taken into account in the planning and construction of any freeway or expressway.

Arterials, too, probably would be subject to this provision, unless they are part of the federal aid system. If the latter is the case, then the provisions of the amendment would not apply. Such is the situation for most — if not all — of the projects underway and which are alleged to be endangered by the amendment.

But what is wrong with the idea that any major roadway project within the city ought to be evaluated in terms of its total impact on the people and surroundings most affected by it? The era when we can disregard any human consideration in street and highway construction other than the marginal one of a bit of time saved is surely ending.

Transit Systems

Lincoln, Neb.
It was appalling enough to watch U.S. Congressman Thone (and Nebraska's two other representatives) vote against the release of some monies from the highway trust fund for mass transit, but then to read The Star's editorial (April 21) endorsing the House action was too much.

To argue that "the substantial need for . . . mass transit systems . . . really" is not the point, but rather that the point is "in what manner such a system should be funded" completely misses the point. Given the Nixon administration's cuts in the regular budget, where does The Star think the money for urban transit is going to come from?

In addition, it was maintained that a partial opening of the trust fund would result in spending on "untried, pie-in-the-sky schemes less desirable than mass transit systems." How likely is this when the entire argument over the issue was that the funds should be used for mass transit? More important, could experimental programs possibly be worse than the mindless concrete paving this country has engaged in since the mid-1950's? With the obsolete, scandal-ridden interstate system nearly completed, what possible national interest is there for preserving the "integrity" of the highway fund? Clearly, if some — if not all — of these monies were put into the general treasury, legitimate highway needs would have to compete with other priorities.

In sum, to argue that the needs for mass transit and highway construction are "different arguments entirely" is about as politically naive as The Star's view that local opponents to the Northeast Radial should vote down the proposed amendment against the radial! With such a narrow view of transportation policy needs, how can an overall balance between methods of transportation ever be achieved.

NE Radial

Lincoln, Neb.
If the mayor didn't like the wording of the No. 2 Charter Amendment dealing with the building of the Northeast Radial, why didn't he say so months ago? He was given a copy of the petition before it was ever circulated. Why didn't he make known his objections at that time?

He and the City Council knew as early as last September that a petition drive to stop the radial was going to be instigated. Why didn't he come forth with a proposal at that time?

This is a well-worded charter amendment. The people of Lincoln believe a more careful study should be made on any street planning. We have to comply with all the charter amendment provisions, anyhow, on all street projects where we are asking for federal funding. We had to do this even before the charter amendment was written. They shouldn't try to fool the people. They aren't as dumb as some seem to think they are.

Pay Raises

Lincoln, Neb.
If the city would find some way of funding the pay raises of the City Council other than putting the burden on the property owner, they may be more successful on their ballot. I do not have the exact figures that were quoted that it would cost each person in Lincoln to have a decently paid city council. However, all of this additional expense would go directly to the property owner.

Another good example of this type of action was the new city buses. The city could put additional tax on liquor, cigarettes or the city sales tax to cover these increases and it would be more evenly distributed.

ding. One suspects that what is, really involved is the discomfort and adjustments that passage of the amendment will cause those who are accustomed to ignoring such factors in the planning of roadway developments.

The city charter in its section on streets (8:1) makes no mention of environmental considerations. The charter does require the planning director to review all capital projects, but primarily to insure their conformity to the Comprehensive Plan. But in the section on the latter (9B:4) there is no reference to social and environmental benefits or costs. It is true that the amendment is lengthy, but this is probably necessary to detail exactly what kinds of environmental considerations ought to be taken into account in arterial and freeway planning.

In observing the unfolding of the controversy surrounding the radial over the past several months, one cannot help but be struck by the apparent insensitivity of city government to the deeply-felt concerns voiced by those Lincoln citizens whose lives were being disrupted by the project.

Perhaps this stems from the fact that initially officials believed their protests could be ignored, as they represented neither power nor wealth. Approval of this amendment would make such indifference and procrastination much rarer in the future than it has been in the past.

I agree with the previous statement in The Star column that those seeking the office know in advance the salaries and duties involved, and was pleased to read Nancy Child's campaign expenditures totaling only $409.29. What I can't understand is why one candidate would spend over $3,000 just for the primary election campaign. It would seem as if there must be numerous personal reasons involved for one to spend that kind of money for a seat on the City Council which has a salary of only $1,040 per year, if all meetings are attended.

Flip-Flop

Lincoln, Neb.
The vigorous grass-roots campaign waged on behalf of Charter Amendment No. 2 seems to be having some effect. The City Council, after years of ignoring us, hoping that we would go away, has performed an astonishing flip-flop on the subject of the Northeast Radial.

Less than two months ago, the council passed on a 5-2 majority a resolution to reaffirm its support of the Northeast Radial project. It was full steam ahead on that $30 million rhapsody in concrete, and damn those few who squawked just because it would ruin their neighborhoods for no good reason. On Tuesday, though, to my surprise, I read that all funds allocated for the radial this year are to be frozen and a policy implemented that "takes into consideration the social, economic and environmental impact of . . . such as the Northeast Radial."

Being familiar with Charter Amendment No. 2, I happen to know that those are precisely the considerations the amendment would require the city to perform. Why is it that The Star reporter failed to point out this rather obvious change of positions?

The City Council does not reverse itself without reason. I suggest an investigation of those reasons. There might be a good story there.

No Ordinance

Lincoln, Neb.
There are two important issues to be decided, election of councilmen by district, and the charter amendment on creating or building streets within the city, costing $15 million. Every effort by the city officials and the newspapers will be used to defeat these charter amendments. They have already resorted to scare tactics, even citing South 27th Street widening, a project costing a little over $1 million as not being able to be built if this charter amendment is passed.

I am here to tell you that this is all bunk. It won't have any effect on improving any arterial street in our street system. It may call for a more complete study on all street improvements. Is this bad? Maybe then it wouldn't be necessary to do these projects over a short time later. Twenty-seventh Street and 70th have already conducted these studies and hearings and will not be affected. I challenge anyone to debate this question with me in public debate.

The mayor is trying to save the Northeast Radial because if it doesn't go through, the city somehow has to get back the $3 million in state gas tax refund money that was spent in acquiring about one-third of the needed right-of-way for the Northeast Radial Two-thirds yet to be acquired. This is money which, in my opinion, was illegally used for this purpose because there has never been an ordinance by the City Council creating the Northeast Radial.

Thank You

Lincoln, Neb.
The members of Grace United Methodist Church want to express their appreciation to all who offered and gave aid and support during and since the time of the fire which destroyed our 1912 structure. Special appreciation goes to

The firemen for their expertise, understanding and thoughtfulness in protecting the educational unit from both fire and water damage, and to Inspectors Gabaron, Soflin and Beacham for perseverance in determining the cause of the fire and their willingness to explain their work.

The policemen for their patience in directing traffic during the fire and their continued protection.

Metcalf's Mortuary for the use of their chapel for Palm Sunday services.

Salvation Army for quickly providing coffee for the firemen and others.

Second Presbyterian Church for the use of their building for a wedding and for Easter services.

National Crane of Waverly for use of their equipment in salvage operations, and to John Burg who operated the crane.

To individuals, fellow churches and other organizations who not only have expressed concern and supported us with their prayers, but also offered their facilities.

To persons and groups who have already contributed to our Fund for the Future.

Such things as these deepen the meaning of the Scripture.

Lethal Toys

York, Neb.

Despite the credibility gap we can believe that all the POW's have been returned, for we have been exposed to a wellorchestrated recital of their sufferings as prisoners.

In my observations, not one of these men has indicated that his suffering could be compared to that of the little children he had slowly burned with napalm, or to villagers mangled with fire bombs, or to the hapless workers torn by his anti-personnel devices. This isn't to mention the destruction of hospitals and dikes, defoliation and carpet bombing.

Because of their youth, these fly boys may be forgiven the atrocities, but how about us who furnished them with their lethal toys, and wished them happy hunting in their search for victims?

FRANK B STOWE

A Sure Way

Sargent, Neb.

Tired of the continued violations of the treaty in Vietnam? Tired of the continued American bombing in support of Laos and Cambodia? It could be over for good by May 1, 1973, if King Richard would immediately suspend all aid and trade with the communist bloc, close the Import-Export Bank to all communist countries, demand immediate payment of all monies due us (in gold), declare all communists "persona non grata" and send them home. Moscow cannot exist without American support and they would make darn sure that the North Vietnam army was home in 10 days.

Misuse Of Program

Lincoln, Neb.

Work-release programs, as I understand it, are for the rehabilitation of the person for his criminal actions. Programs of this type are undoubtedly beneficial for both the person involved and the public in general.

But when these programs are used for making up incomplete course work and physical conditioning for entry into pro football, I feel the program is terribly abused. In fact, every brush of the law Mr. Johnny Rodgers has come in contact with seems to have been abused.

Minden, Neb.
After seeing that article considered news on the front page of the April 13 Star, "Alice Cooper Holds X-Rated Press Meet," we were thoroughly disgusted and our estimation of The Star went down 100%.

Why, oh, why, would The Star put such trash on the front page when this character shouldn't have even been placed anywhere in what we thought was a good upright paper?

It seems to us to be popular, one has to be a drug addict, or an odd-ball to be sure to be in the headlines of a once decent paper.

Re-read that item and ask yourself if it was necessary.

Candidate Profiles:

Sue Bailey Views Candidacy As Logical Step

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of profiles of the candidates for City Council.)
By LYNN ZERSCHLNG
Star Staff Writer

To City Council candidate Sue Bailey — running for office seemed like the logical step to take after being an observer of local government for 16 years.

"I spent so many years studying local government, that I think my candidacy is almost a matter of conscience," she said.

"The frustration had accumulated over a period of years."

For 16 years Mrs. Bailey has been active in the Lincoln League of Women Voters and has held various offices in that organization.

"Guess I'm a kind of professional busybody," the petite, 49-year-old woman commented.

Served On Boards
In her capacity as a league officer she has served on numerous boards and commissions, including the Region II Crime Commission, and has sat in on various governmental meetings, including the City Council.

Although involved in various issues, the one which has dominated Mrs. Bailey's time more than any other has been the improvement of conditions in the City-County jail.

She was instrumental in establishing the league's Corrections Committee, which has conducted a number of studies on the jail situation.

"The jail issue is by no means dead," she said.

"The existing structure seems to perpetuate the illusion that punishment is a deterrent to crime."

Outspoken On Issues
Admitting she was outspoken on a wide range of issues, Mrs. Bailey acknowledged the old political axiom "not to say anything which will offend anybody."

"I think it's more important to get some things said — whether I'm elected or not," she said emphatically.

In addition to participating in league activities, Mrs. Bailey is a member of the Capitol Association for Retarded Children.

Her interest is an extremely personal one. The Baileys have a seven-year-old retarded child.

"We enjoy her very much," she said lovingly.

Only Hobby
"Gardening is about my only hobby," she said.

Pointing to a neatly laid out garden, brick-lined patio and flower beds in her yard at 1800 So. 22nd, Mrs. Bailey commented, "I like to do landscaping — in fact I landscaped our yard."

"Well, maybe that dignifies it a little more than it may deserve," she laughingly said.

"I also like refinishing furniture," she said, noting that she built and designed the tables in the league office, plus much of the furniture in her home.

Trade Announced

Wasaga Beach, Ont. (AP) — The Ontario Zoological Park is getting two new hippopotami from a West German zoo in return for several animals not native to Europe, park officials announced. The previous hippo in Ontario, 9-year-old Cleopatra, died last September after swallowing a rubber ball.

Asians Resettled

Court Asked To Uphold Hare Brothers' Convictions

By United Press International

The State Justice Department Tuesday asked the Nebraska Supreme Court to uphold the manslaughter convictions of Melvin P. and Leslie D. Hare for the death of Raymond Yellow Thunder at Gordon.

The Hare brothers, two of five persons charged in connection with the incident, appealed the Box Butte County District Court convictions on the grounds the evidence was insufficient.

Yellow Thunder's body was found in a used car lot in Gordon about Feb. 20 and the time of death was placed by a physician on Feb. 17 of last year.

The attorneys for the brothers contended there was no way to link a beating on Feb. 12 with the death itself.

The attorney general, however, said there was medical evidence introduced during the trial which explained the difference in dates and which was not refuted by the defense.

Specifically during the trial, it was testified the two brothers took part in a beating on Feb. 12 during which Yellow Thunder was "stomped" about the head, the attorney general said.

Dr. W. O. Brown, who performed the autopsy, said the difference in times could be at least partially explained.

He said the man was probably injured at the time of the beating in such a way that a slow hemorrhaging occurred in the brain which ultimately resulted in death.

On that basis, the attorney general said, the jury in the case "had sufficient evidence to find that the casual relationship (between the beating and the death) was established beyond a reasonable doubt."

The attorneys for the brothers also said they were erroneously charged with a crime on Feb. 12 when it didn't take place on that date.

The attorney general, however, said it is established procedure in cases where death results to file charges based on the date of the incident which caused the death.

Wild Horse Claims Denied By Bureau

Boise, Idaho (AP) — The Bureau of Land Management (BLM) Tuesday denied claims of a coverup in a case involving wild horses shipped from Idaho to North Platte, Neb.

Fred Cook, a spokesman for the BLM Idaho office in Boise, said the horses are under the care of a government-appointed veterinarian pending a determination of whether they are wild or not.

Cook said the status of the horses will be determined in court as the result of a $100,000 lawsuit filed by the American Humane Society. Cook said the North Platte packing plant has been very cooperative in the matter.

Kent Gregersen, an official of the National Mustang Association in Utah, has accused the government of dragging its feet on the issue. Gregersen contends wild horses continue to be shipped and killed for commercial products.

Cook said the BLM is keeping a close watch on all horses on government land, adding that if there has been an error "it was an honest mistake."

Lincoln General Hopes To Hold Off Rate Hike

Lincoln General Hospital said Tuesday it intends to hold off as long as possible before raising room rates.

But hospital spokesmen said rising costs and expenses probably will force some kind of increase before the end of the calendar year.

Members of the hospital board and the City Council met for breakfast Tuesday to discuss the hospital cost situation, and they were told that General will try to keep room rates constant until September.

The city's fiscal year ends Aug. 31.

Sertoma Club Adds Awards

The Lincoln Sertoma Club has added a new sponsorship to the youth oriented programs of Sertoma.

Awards will be presented to three students from each of the five high schools in Lincoln on the basis of excellence in the specific fields included in the fine arts curriculum.

It was also announced that a group of Lincoln Sertomans will leave for Sioux Falls for a regional convention.

Robinson Will Talk

John Robinson, candidate for City Council, will speak at a meeting of the Malone Neighborhood Council at the Malone Community Center, 2030 T at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. The meeting will be open to the public.

'Stop The Radial'

The Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA) will sponsor a Town Hall meeting Thursday at the YWCA at 7:30 p.m. The topic of discussion will be the "Stop the Northeast Radial Amendment."

Funds Okayed For Riverfront

Washington (UPI) — The National Endowment for the Arts has decided to grant $15,000 to the riverfront development project in Omaha area.

The money will be used by the Omaha-Council Bluffs Metropolitan Area Planning Agency (MAPA) for development of arts along the riverfront.

Nebraska Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska and Rep. John Y. McCollister learned of the award Tuesday afternoon.

Elections will be held Monday to select the officers of the Lincoln Bar Association for 1973-1974. The action will come during the group's annual business meeting, which will be held at The Villager following a banquet.

The banquet and meeting be preceded by a 4:30 p.m. clinic, at which Nebraska State Bar Association legislative counsel, Arlen Beam, will discuss the present and future legislative program affecting the administration of justice.

Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas has been nominated by the local bar's board of trustees to be president of the group during 1973-1974. Douglas is currently the vice-president, and if elected, would succeed Lincoln attorney Bert Overcash as president.

Other officers nominated for election are Theodore Kessner for vice-president, Richard Williams for secretary, and Fredric Kauffman for treasurer.

The terms of the present members of the board of trustees will expire, and a new board will be elected during the meeting. Nominated by the present board for election to the board of trustees are Asa A. Christensen, Paul E. Galter and Donald A. Shaneyfelt.

The present board is comprised of Gene Watson, Fredric Kauffman and Henry Grether.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

Two Aries persons who are friends of astrology, both brilliant and famous: Gloria Swanson and Jane Withers. There will be more travel for Aries natives this year and also more of an opportunity for self-expression. May should be one of the most significant months of 1973 for many born under this dynamic sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Social life accelerates. Activities and interests expand. Some of your hopes, wishes become realities. You are more confident because those you respect pay meaningful compliments. Favorable publicity could also be featured.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You advance, make progress. Only 20% could become more secure. Obtain hint from Aries message. Make contact with one who can make room for you at top. Strive to achieve potential. It is not necessary to take back seat. Go forward.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good lunar aspect coincides with good news from afar, favorable legal settlement, chance to get views heard by those who can aid. Be selective. You have no reason to substitute for quality. Cycle is such that you hold winning hand.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money that had been held in escrow or otherwise restricted could be released. Joint efforts are most likely to succeed. Capricorn is in picture. You will be given more responsibility — and money. You gain power.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You gain co-operation from sources that previously offered mild opposition. There is turnabout and it works in your favor. Accent is on reaching more persons, a profitable contract and better distribution. Marriage or partnership situation improve.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Take lead. Stress independence, originality. Your own methods, ways, style should be emphasized. One who wants you to perform is really indecisive and doubt-filled. It really is best now to heed your own counsel.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Love, romantic interests, creative endeavors, dealings with young persons — these are featured. Ideas fit together. What seemed a short time ago to be impossible now becomes an actuality. Aquarius might figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Money and security are spotlighted — and you are happy. Burden is removed. Pressure is not so heavy. Money picture is brighter. You become more flexible. You have opportunity for vacation travel. Enjoy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Journeys, visits, dealing with relatives — these are all favored. You obtain details which enable you to play together pure. Means dilemma can be solved. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons are featured.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Bright picture reflects financial situation. You are able to make significant gains. You add to possession. Special conference could result in decision which means profit for you. Study message, analyze calls.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Watch weight. Remember diet resolutions. Tendency now is to go to extremes. Stick to what you like and understand. Cycle is high and element of timing favors your efforts. Sagittarius will be in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): What happens "out of sight" proves favorable. Someone likes you and will prove it in material way. Means you're due for a surprise — of pleasant variety. Another Piscean could be in picture.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are studious, spiritual, not easy to live with but you are a person who adheres to Golden Rule. In May, you will be completing a project which could gain you plaudits. You attract many to you who were born under Pisces.

TV Strike May Soon Be Visible

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television's invisible strike by the men and women who write the scripts for the series, variety shows and soap operas may soon become noticeable to the public.

The first to feel the pinch will be the daytime serials, which will begin running out of scripts in two to three weeks if the strike is not settled.

Although the Writers Guild of America struck March 6 in a dispute involving higher pay for scripts, the strike was not extended to the soap operas and variety shows until April 12.

If the strike lasts long enough it could force the networks to postpone the premiere of next fall's television season.

The strike has not been apparent to the public because it did not affect the soap operas until recently and because the March 6 walkout date came at a time when the networks were entering the period of reruns.

The strike is also against the producers of motion pictures, but the studios still have enough of a backlog of features for the time being.

The strike has now moved into the time when the industry gears up for the fall television season and orders the scripts for the new shows. The longer the strike lasts the further back it will push the gear-up time. A lobby of producers is demanding that they not be required to begin production until 12 weeks after the strike is settled.

Some independent companies have signed the new Writers Guild contract and are able to order scripts and begin production. But the 32 companies that have signed so far represent only 13 of the prime-time series on next year's schedules.

The Association of Motion Picture and Television Producers — whose 72 members include all the major studios and thus account for most of the series — has not signed.

The new contract with the independents calls for increasing the pay for a one-hour script from $4,500 to $6,000. This is the first pay increase for writers in 14 years. The contract also includes other improved benefits.

The shows that have signed the new contract include: "The Waltons," "All in the Family," "Sanford and Son," "Maude," "The FBI," "The Streets of San Francisco," "Cannon," "Barney Jones," "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "The Bob Newhart Show," "The New Dick Van Dyke Show," "The Rookies" and "Diana."

In addition, some nonsigning shows have scripts on hand. "Gunsmoke" has 15 scripts and is in production. "Columbo" has filmed several episodes. "The New Perry Mason Show" has 13 scripts, but it has not cast any performers yet. "Room 222" is reported to have enough scripts to start production. Other returning shows also have scripts.

4 Incumbents, 2 Newcomers On AP Board

NEW YORK (AP) — Four incumbents and two new directors were elected to the 18-member board of The Associated Press Monday.

Returned to the board were David R. Bradley of the St. Joseph, Mo., News-Press and Gazette; Jack Tarver of the Atlanta, Ga., Constitution; D. Tennant Bryan of the Richmond, Va., News Leader and Times-Dispatch; and Dolph C. Simons, Jr., of the Lawrence, Kan., Journal-World. Simons was returned in the category of director from a city of less than 50,000 population.

The new board members are G. Gordon Strong of the Canton, Ohio, Repository and Robert L. Taylor of the Philadelphia Evening and Sunday Bulletin.

Emergency Loan Program Effectuated

Washington (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz ordered aides in the Farmers Home Administration to activate an emergency credit program signed into law by President Nixon.

Under the program, farmers in areas covered by presidential disaster proclamations will become immediately eligible for emergency loans at a 5% interest rate.

Ethnic Germans Glad To Return

FRIEDLAND, Germany (AP) — They are the bits and pieces of lost empire: Germans from Russia and Poland, bitter and angry, but glad at last to be in the West.

The older ones are stalked by extreme caution and a lingering fear that makes them demand anonymity.

"It is pretty good now," said a man of about 50, just arrived from Russia. "But who knows about tomorrow?"

"I have heard so many promises. Promise me you will not use my picture. I think not only of myself but of my comrades still waiting to get out."

A resolute woman from Poland stood listening and added: "Yes, no pictures. I have seen such pictures in Polish papers. They say, 'See, now they are in the West and they do not like it there. They want to come back.'"

For the Germans from Russia who come to Friedland, it is a last step in an odyssey begun by their ancestors 200 years ago.

Catherine the Great, a German princess who became Czarina of Russia, recruited German colonists to live, work and prosper in the vastness of the Russian land mass.

They trekked eastward between 1763 and 1842. By 1871 and the founding of the German Reich, Russian rulers began ignoring special privileges for the German settlers, including a promise they would be spared military service "forever."

A Communist revolution and two world wars this century decimated the ranks of the Russian-Germans and played havoc with settlements that once commanded as much farm acreage as there is now in West Germany.

In 1914, they numbered 2.4 million people in 3,300 settlements and some 600 farm estates, clustered mostly along the Volga River and near the Black Sea.

Now only a few settlements remain with the number of ethnic Germans put at just over one million, down from the 1.6 million listed by German estimates in 1959.

Collectivized by Stalin, the ethnic Germans were scattered as badly needed workers for the most part east of the Ural Mountains in the wake of World War II.

Albert Schulz, 55, director of the resettlement camp at Friedland, said that some 40,000 ethnic Germans have applied for permission to leave the Soviet Union.

He said that of an estimated 1.2 million Germans still living in what became Polish territories after 1945, up to 300,000 would come to West Germany immediately if they could.

Schulz said that for a German to reach the West, he must prove he has relatives in West Germany. He praised the policies of Chancellor Willy Brandt in establishing better relations with the East as giving new impetus to the movement of Germans out of the area.

In 1971-72, he said, 38,167 Germans were allowed to leave Poland as compared to 22,986 the three years before. Figures for arrivals from Russia for the same periods were put at 4,532 as compared to 1,243. So far in 1973, the pace has slowed.

Reliable sources said that Brandt and Foreign Minister Walter Scheel are expected to go to Poland, perhaps as early as June, to try to get Polish agreement to speed up release of those Germans who want to leave.

Brandt is believed likely to take up the matter of the ethnic Germans in Russia with Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid Brezhnev when the latter visits Bonn.

Arrivals from Poland bring far more belongings with them, including such items as television sets and washing machines.

Schulz said those from Poland often bring valuables like gold, silver and clocks with them, while those from the Soviet Union have to travel such long distances they arrive with only what they can carry.

A critical distinction between the two groups is knowledge of German. Those from the Soviet Union, even children, speak and can read at least some German. Young people from Poland, however, have little knowledge of their mother tongue.

"It is remarkable," Schulz declared, "to meet a German from Russia who has never been here but who speaks with the dialect of, say, Cologne, while younger Germans from areas that until 1945 were German speak only Polish."

The Germans from Poland are the remnants of several million who were forced out as Poles pushed west by the Soviet Union were resettled in the former German lands.

Secrecy For Newsmen Issue Before Legislators

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The action in the conflict over a newsman's right to protect his sources has shifted from the courts to the legislative chamber.

Federal and state lawmakers are debating a wide variety of bills that would give newsmen partial or complete immunity from being forced to disclose sources of confidential information.

The House Judiciary Committee ended hearings last month on the subject of newsmen's privilege and a subcommittee headed by U.S. Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., has met twice to try to reach a consensus.

The Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights, headed by U.S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., also held lengthy hearings last month, but has taken no action.

Most of the bills fall into two basic categories — one group provides newsmen with unqualified immunity from testifying about their sources before any grand jury or legislative investigation; the other offers limited immunity.

In the House, for example, a bill cosponsored by five Republicans — William S. Cohen of Maine, Tom Railsback of Illinois, Henry P. Smith III of New York, Charles W. Sandman Jr. of New Jersey and Lawrence Coughlin of Pennsylvania — would provide absolute privilege for newsmen with regard to investigative proceedings before government agencies, federal grand juries or congressional committees. It would provide only limited privilege in civil or criminal proceedings in federal courts. Newsmen could be required to disclose confidential information or sources if the court found that the material was relevant to a significant issue in the case and could not be obtained elsewhere.

Another House bill, introduced by John B. Anderson of Illinois, also a Republican, would give professional newsmen unqualified protection from federal or state court orders to reveal confidential news sources or information. Anderson said any qualifications in a press shield bill would provide loopholes for attorneys on "fishing expeditions."

The American Newspaper Publishers Association and other press groups have urged approval of an unqualified shield law.

Congressional sources say, however, that chances for such a measure are slim. "They're not going to get anything strong out of the subcommittee," said Lawrence Baskir, counsel to the Senate subcommittee.

Ervin himself said earlier, "I don't believe Congress will pass an unqualified privilege bill."

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled last year that the First Amendment to the Constitution does not give newsmen a special exemption from testifying before a grand jury about information gained in confidence. Several reporters have gone to jail for contempt of court rather than disclose their sources.

Earl Caldwell, a New York Times reporter and one of those involved in the cases that led to the court ruling, told the House hearings on a shield law that since the decision "we have seen prosecutors and judges emboldened by the notion that reporters can become... investigative arms of the law enforcement process."

The court refused on Monday to hear the case of David M. Lightman, a Baltimore Evening Sun reporter who was cited for contempt by a county grand jury for refusing to reveal the source of a 1971 article.

Lightman claimed the probe was motivated by a desire on the part of the grand jury to harass his newspaper. A special state court of appeals had upheld the contempt citation, ruling that Lightman himself was the "source" of the story which involved marijuana.

Earlier, the court declined to hear a petition from Peter Bridge — jailed for 21 days for refusing to answer some questions in a grand jury probe involving the Newark, N.J., housing authority. Bridge had appealed state court rulings upholding his citation for contempt of the Essex County grand jury and asked the court to rule that grand juries be required to show a compelling need before they question newsmen.

New Jersey lawmakers passed a bill earlier this year that would have given newsmen broad immunity from testifying, but it was vetoed by Gov. William T. Cahill. "It is no more acceptable to have the press all-powerful than it is to have government all-powerful," the Republican governor said.

Elsewhere at the state level, developments included:

Connecticut — a proposed shield law died in committee April 10 after an argument over the extent to which sources should be protected.

Tennessee — Gov. Winfield Dunn signed into law on April 5 a bill forbidding lower courts to subpoena newsmen without first showing "overriding" public interest to an appellate court.

Texas — the state Senate passed a bill April 5 that would allow the Texas Supreme Court to compel a newsmen to disclose confidential information if it were proved that the material could not be obtained otherwise and if withholding it would "cause or threaten harm or injury, endanger public health and welfare or cause substantial injustice." The House has passed a broader bill offering absolute protection except in cases involving libel, slander and invasion of privacy suits.

California — A bill was passed extending the state "evidence code." Under the old law, a reporter who subsequently left the news business could be called to testify about a story or broadcast used earlier. William Farr, who spent 46 days in a Los Angeles jail for refusing to disclose his source for a newspaper article about the Charles Manson trial, was accused under this provision.

Pennsylvania — U.S. District Judge William W. Knox conditionally upheld the state's shield law. The action came during pretrial hearings in the case of an alleged numbers boss whose lawyers claimed that information in stories by Thomas A. Hennessy, publisher of the weekly Forum in Pittsburgh, could only have come from wiretaps. Hennessy refused to identify individuals he said provided him with certain information, and Knox said: "We are going to enforce the newspaperman's privilege in this particular case."

San Francisco — Absolutely prime weather around here now. The skies are as blue as a kitten's eyes. The sun falls like butter on the deck at Snug Harbor. The day opens with a fresh morning smell.

Coffee bubbling on the stove and breeze off the salt water. That's the life, mates.

The youngster girl has taken over the scatter. We are housekeeping alone for a week. It is something like the pioneers went through, I imagine.

The bathroom has been rearranged. Cleaned up.

I said: "Where in the blasting name of this and that is my razor?"

She said: "I put it in the kitchen."

Why did she put it in the kitchen? Logic, dear friends, logic.

"Because that's where we keep the sharp knives."

A big credit card company has caught in a computer again. It is programmed for insulting messages.

"We've paid your bills. Now will you pay ours?"

I wrote a hot letter. I was mad. I sent them a copy of my check they had cashed. Front and back views.

I got an apologetic letter from a vice president. In the same mail I got another bill from the computer. It said it was sick and tired of my attitude and would shortly hand me over to its lawyer, a real mean fellow.

I said: "Where's the bath towel?" She said: "I hung them out on the porch to dry."

I said: "Fetch me a new one."

She said: "I think we spend too much on laundry bills." (Man, do they get the act on fast!)

I said: "I'm dripping wet! Bring me a towel!"

The pioneers did not have bath towels. They didn't take baths.

He who rides the tiger cannot dismount.

If you rise early in our scatter you can have your shower in peace. None of that cold shower and breast beating for me. For heroes or liars, but not for me. I am for the steamy thing.

Now there's some kind of pressure in our system that won't stand any other faucet turned on.

If another faucet is turned on, the shower will either boil you or freeze you. I came leaping out of the shower screaming: "Shut off the water!"

I get answers like, "I forgot, sorry."

(They'll be sorry when I'm gone. Too late then, my dears. I may change my will. Feed it into a computer. Some fun when the relatives gather with the lawyers and the answers come back. "Past due.")

I think man (and women — sorry about that Ms.) is being ruined by blinking machines.

Even flying high above the clouds, we are not immune.

While flying at 600 miles an hour, Miss R. Mukerjee walked 5 1/4 miles between London and New York. Miss Mukerjee is a stewardess for Air India, 24 years old. It takes young legs to do that heel-and-toe for nearly six miles.

The airline put a pedometer on her. They wanted to see how much gam work there is on the run.

They fed this information into a computer. And Miss Mukerjee will be surprised someday to get a letter saying her account is past due.

Lively days around Snug Harbor. (Luxury apartments! Splendid views!) We've planted a small stand of marigolds on the deck.

I said: "Why is the gin bottle empty?"

She said: "I needed it to water the plants."

The gin? She emptied that in the vase. Tastes a little rosy, but it's the only game in town.

Japan Rejects U.S. Visit By Hirohito

©The New York Times

Tokyo — Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira disclosed Tuesday that his government has rejected President Nixon's invitation to Emperor Hirohito to make a state visit to the United States.

Ohira called in Ambassador Robert S. Ingersoll to inform him of the decision.

Later, Ohira told Japanese newsmen that "circumstances, including the imperial household schedule," did not permit the visit this year. He did not elaborate, but it was clear that anti-American political opposition had caused the rejection.

The decision by Premier Kakuei Tanaka's government seemed certain to add to the deterioration of U.S. relations with Japan, which are already seriously strained by continuing economic frictions and a lack of political communication.

Some Japanese officials involved in American affairs expressed private disappointment. One called the decision a "tragedy."

Specifically, the rejection of the invitation to visit the U.S. this year, although couched in terms of a postponement, cast doubt on the possibility that Nixon would visit Japan in the foreseeable future. Ohira, however, said the Japanese government would welcome him if Nixon decided to come.

Some officials and politically aware Japanese privately deplored the timing of the announcement. They noted that Nixon was under fire at home because of the Watergate affair and asserted that this decision would add to his political difficulties.

Nixon personally invited Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako to visit the U.S. when the two heads of state met in Anchorage, Alaska, in September 1971, as the emperor's plane made a fueling stop on the way to his three-week tour of Europe.

Since then, the invitation was repeated when Nixon met Tanaka in Hawaii last September, by the President's assistant for national security affairs, Henry A. Kissinger, during trips to Tokyo, by the President again when Finance Minister Kichi Aichi was in Washington in March, and by the President most recently to a group of Japanese governors who paid a call at the White House.

State Dept. Hopes For 1974 Visit

©The New York Times

Washington — The State Department said Tuesday that it was "our hope" that a date could be set next year for the visit of Emperor Hirohito to the United States.

The State Department said "it goes without saying that the American people and the American government would welcome a visit from the emperor and empress of Japan."

Allen, Pal Of 3 Presidents, Dies

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — George E. Allen, confidant of three U.S. presidents, has died in a hospital here, it was announced today. He was 77.

Allen was brought into politics by Franklin D. Roosevelt, was a poker playing pal of Harry S. Truman and a golfing companion of Dwight D. Eisenhower.

A spokesman at the Dwight D. Eisenhower Medical Center said Allen was hospitalized last Thursday and that he died Monday from pulmonary embolism.

Allen and his wife, Mary, his only survivor, lived at the El Dorado Club at Indian Wells, where Eisenhower had a home.

Allen was a corporation attorney and at one time was a member of the boards of directors of more than 30 companies. He told of his association with Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower in a book entitled "Presidents Who Have Known Me."

His first job was as a chamber of commerce speaker in Indiana at $75 a week. He later managed hotels, ran his worth to about $2 million and went broke in the 1929 Wall Street crash.

Sen. Pat Harrison, D-Miss., persuaded Roosevelt to appoint Allen as one of the three commissioners of the District of Columbia who operate the city government of Washington.

Allen's broad humor earned him a reputation as court jester, and he and Roosevelt became close friends.

The Democratic National Committee assigned Allen to assist Truman in his campaign for vice president. When Truman became president he named Allen a member of the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

Allen and Eisenhower had become acquainted in London during World War II and their friendship ripened when Eisenhower succeeded Truman in the White House.

Services will be conducted Thursday in Booneville, Miss., Allen's birthplace.

Equity Funding Tangle Is Causing Financial Woes

Wed., April 25, 1973 The Lincoln Star 17

NEW YORK (AP) — To scores of American institutions and uncounted thousands of individuals, the crisis at Equity Funding corporation of America is much more than a subject for cocktail party conversation.

They are investors, customers and lenders with millions of dollars on the line as authorities seek to untangle the affairs of the California-based financial conglomerate, now in bankruptcy proceedings after being charged with massive insurance and bookkeeping fraud.

Now, three weeks after the scandal broke, Robert Loeffler, the trustee heading efforts to reorganize Equity Funding, says it appears the firm's assets exceed its liabilities although there is an apparent cash problem.

But it seems certain that a good many companies and individuals will suffer losses, and the case prompts fundamental questions about and promises possible changes in the rules, standards and practices of broad sectors of the financial world.

The scandal centers on the company's Equity Funding Life Insurance Co. subsidiary, where investors have alleged that only about 30,000 of the 97,000 policyholders claimed by the company actually existed.

The California Insurance Department, which is still probing the case, said the phantom policies had a total face value of $2 billion, with annual premiums of more than $25 million. According to state investigators, the company apparently had been selling the false policies to other companies since as early as 1969.

The company has not acknowledged any guilt, but before it was placed in the hands of a court appointed trustee it agreed not to engage in future fraud. Formal charges have been filed by the federal Securities and Exchange Commission.

Here is a rundown on effects to date.

Life insurance policyholders. Those 30,000 customers can't be declared out of the woods yet, said California Insurance Commissioner Gleason L. Payne, but "I feel hopeful it will be worked out so that the policyholders are protected."

Payne says it isn't known yet if the company has adequate assets to back up the real policies. If it doesn't, however, he said, several steps can be taken to protect the policyholders' interests — among them sale of the policies to another insurer.

Payne's department has urged policyholders to continue paying premiums to avoid allowing the policies to lapse. He said policyholders can't borrow money on those policies now, but he expected to announce soon a plan under which benefits on outstanding policies could be paid promptly should their holders die.

Equity Funding's other life insurance units: Northern Life, based in the state of Washington, Bankers National Life, in New Jersey, and Equity Funding Life of New York all have been pronounced sound after inquiries by state authorities.

Two attorneys who were named as counsel to the three mutual funds in the Equity Funding group after the scandal broke say "there is no indication that we have now that there is going to be a problem with the funds."

The funds: Equity Growth, Equity Progress and Fund of America have declined sharply in value since the first of the year, but so have others amid declining stock prices.

As in the case of the insurance companies which are reported sound, the funds' ties to Equity Funding have been cut, authorities report.

The attorneys: Meyer Eisenberg and Philip N. Smith Jr. said publicly about the parent company's problems spurred a rise in redemptions of the funds' shares, but not an all-out "run" on them.

Creditor Banks: Four banks — Wells Fargo of San Francisco, New York's First National City Bank, Franklin National Bank and National Bank of North America — say they have loans outstanding to Equity Funding totaling some $50 million. The banks have tried to seize some $12 million in Equity Funding deposits, but the judge who ordered Equity Funding into bankruptcy proceedings has so far turned aside those efforts. The matter is now before an appeals court.

Investors in Equity Funding

Securities: Just about everybody who dealt in Equity Funding stock during its 22½-point slide after the first of the year is confronted with the prospect of some loss. But some plainly stand to suffer more than others.

The final outcome for many depends on a vast series of lawsuits challenging the validity of Equity Funding shares, as well as on the outcome of reorganization efforts at the company's Beverly Hills, Calif., headquarters.

The long list of those with vast sums of money at stake includes such prestigious names as Princeton University, Sarah Lawrence College and the Ford Foundation.

Apparently the biggest single chunk of the almost 8 million outstanding Equity Funding common shares belongs to Fidelity Corp., a Richmond, Va., financial concern whose 579,000 shares — roughly 7 per cent of the total — had a market value of better than $23 million two years ago. Fidelity acquired the shares then from Equity Funding in return for Fidelity's 36 per cent interest in Bankers Life.

Fidelity filed suit a few days ago charging fraud by Equity Funding and others and seeking unspecified damages.

If the timing of the company's collapse was bad for that concern, it was very good indeed for First Executive Corp., a Beverly Hills holding company which itself owns three insurance concerns.

Otto Forst, First Executive president, confirmed that it had been in negotiations to be acquired by Equity Funding before he terminated the talks March 26 because of the drop in Equity's stock and reports of financial problems at the company.

Whether or not Equity Funding can ever be restored to financial health, its name seems assured of a prominent place in American business history.

Drawing an analogy which others have also made, Raymond L. Dirks, the securities analyst whose personal inquiry led to massive investigations by authorities into the company, describes the case as "the Watergate of the whole financial structure."

The spotlight shines particularly on the accounting profession, the insurance business and Wall Street, and on the various government agencies which regulate them.

Developments and prospects to date:

—Few dispute the likelihood that changes are in store for accounting requirements. The independent auditors who checked Equity Funding's operations never brought to public view any element of the alleged fraud while, according to the California Insurance Department's preliminary figures, the company was dealing in more than 50,000 bogus insurance policies.

Dirks asserts "This is the end" for a profession which had already been under fire from some quarters.

A key issue for accountants centers on the techniques used in the alleged scheme. If, as some early reports have suggested, a sophisticated computer program was successfully used to hide aspects of the company's operations from auditors' eyes, then the profession will clearly have some catching up to do in its data processing expertise.

—The case poses basic questions for the insurance business on two fronts: reinsurance and regulation.

Insurance companies' widely employed practice of "reinsuring" — under which a company in many cases sells a policy or policies to a second company for an immediate cash payment — is alleged to have been a key in the scheme with which Equity Funding is charged. Authorities contend many policies which Equity Funding sold under this arrangement were simply fake.

Regardless of whether the case leads to new restrictions on such activity, insurance concerns are very likely to do an increased amount of checking in the future on the policies which they reinsure.

Meanwhile regulation of the insurance industry, now almost entirely in the hands of state governments, is coming in for a hard look.

—Wall Street: Many securities industry people suffered the embarrassment of being caught completely by surprise by the Equity Funding scandal. But most of the attention in Wall Street has focused on another aspect of the complex situation — the issue of "inside information" in trading securities.

In the days that followed the drop in equity stock and halt of its sale, an intricate tangle of suits was filed, many of them by buyers seeking to have transactions voided. Many of the suits argue that sellers of the stock had unfair and illegal knowledge of information to which the buyers did not have access.

Dirks is a key figure in this situation. While some are lauding him for diligence in ferreting out the scandal, the Big Board has filed disciplinary charges against him. He is accused of violating an exchange rule by providing his clients with "material adverse information" relating to Equity Funding at a time when that information was not publicly available.

In November of 1972, Ted Dewey was appointed to fill a 7-month vacancy on the Lincoln Board of Education.

He has completed that temporary term and is now running for a 4-year seat on the Board.

QUESTION: If the School Board members thought enough of Ted Dewey's capabilities to appoint him, don't you think we should elect him?

The deluxe way to help hamburger from Del Monte.

(And it actually serves four.)

Del Monte has a whole line of fancy meals at plain prices. One of them is Grand Tour Polynesian Sweet n' Sour.

The plain price is due to the fact that it's made with hamburger (you'll need to buy a pound).

And it tastes fancy because we put everything into it: sweet n' sour sauce, pineapple tidbits, tomato wedges, seasonings for the ground beef and long grain rice.

Your whole family will love Grand Tour Polynesian Sweet n' Sour any night of the week.

Because it tastes like it came, not out of a box, but a cookbook.

Sabin Detects Possible Link Between 1 Virus And Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Albert B. Sabin, developer of live-virus polio vaccine, reported Tuesday he and a colleague had found evidence of a link between a virus and certain forms of human cancer.

Sabin, reported finding evidence that two common and widespread viruses play an important role in causing some types of cancer in "certain individuals under special conditions."

In a report co-authored by Dr. Giulio Tarro, an Italian scientist from the University of Naples, Sabin listed the viruses as two types of "herpes simplex" virus.

Those are microbes which ordinarily cause fever blisters and cold sores or sores of the genital organs.

He said they were implicated in cancer-causation by a newly discovered form of protein antibodies detectable in the blood serum of certain cancer patients.

The antibodies, he said, are in turn indirect but definite evidence of invisible "footprints" left behind by viruses after playing a hit-and-run role in triggering a malignancy.

The National Cancer Institute, which sponsored final stages of the research, said that the studies provide additional evidence that herpes viruses "may" be implicated in a cause-and-effect way with certain cancers.

But Sabin, at a news conference, said he was sticking to his guns on his original statement that did not include the qualifying word "may."

However, the NCI, in a statement prepared by Dr. John Moloney, a key scientific official, had high praise for the studies and said they "open up a new area of research" on the role of viruses in human cancer.

Sabin said the human research was pioneered by his Italian colleague and was brought to its conclusion only a few days ago at the National Cancer Institute's new cancer research center at Fort Detrick, Frederick, Md., a facility formerly used as the army's center for biological warfare research.

Both Sabin and Tarro have been doing joint research there for several months.

Sabin said the achievement marked the climax of almost a decade of study and research.

Sabin said the 29 types of cancer studied constitute only a fraction of an estimated "at least 100 different varieties of cancer, although there are not necessarily 100 different causes."

He urged further research to determine whether other common, widespread viruses, such as those of chicken-pox and shingles, might contribute to causing some forms of cancer in certain people.

Dr. Sabin, formerly of the University of Cincinnati, is president-emeritus of the Weismann Institute of Science in Israel.

Budget Director Can't Sell Stocks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget director Roy L. Ash has told Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., he has been unable to sell 12,028 shares of his Litton stock because it is collateral a bank is reluctant to give up.

Ash also said he has not reported to the Securities & Exchange Commission transfer of the rest of his 225,000 shares of Litton stock into a blind trust when he resigned as the conglomerate's president to join the Nixon administration because he didn't think he was required to do so.

He asked the SEC last Friday for a ruling, arguing in effect that the blind trust could not keep him at arm's length from his private funds as a public official if he had to report its transactions to the SEC.

Aspin Tuesday released copies of Aspin's letters to himself and the SEC.

The congressman accused Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, of not fulfilling his public pledge to divest all of his Litton stock, and of having "obvious reluctance to conform to the requirements of the SEC's regulations."

Ash wrote Aspin that his last 12,028 shares of Litton stock will be sold through the blind trust as soon as the Security Pacific National Bank agrees to accept some other collateral in trade for them.

He said it was not by his design that the Litton common shares "are still technically within my control." In fact, he said, the bank's reluctance to accept other collateral "has cost me money due to the stock's devaluation."

Ash argued in his request for an SEC ruling that his transfer of the Litton stock to a blind trust was not a "change in beneficial ownership," which past or present corporation executives are required to report to the SEC.

Armstrong, Ex-Editor Of Foreign Affairs, Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Hamilton Fish Armstrong, a world authority on international politics and for 44 years editor of the influential quarterly Foreign Affairs, died Tuesday after a long illness. He had turned 80 on April 7.

He "was a friend and an inspiration," said Henry A.

Kissinger when informed of Armstrong's death.

Armstrong retired last fall from the editorship of the magazine which he had helped found in 1922. During his tenure the authors he published included such luminaries as Leon Trotsky, the Earl of Avon (Sir Anthony Eden), Nixon, Nikita S. Khrushchev, Franklin D. Roosevelt, John F. Kennedy, Tito, Jawaharlal Nehru and Konrad Adenauer.

The most publicized article ever to appear in the magazine was published in 1947 and was signed "X." It first set forth the policy of "containment" of the Soviet Union and it was soon known that the author was the State Department's Russian expert, George Kennan.

Armstrong was the first American to interview Hitler after the Nazi leader's accession to power in Germany in 1933. Gloomily he predicted the war that broke out in 1939.

Spring Flowers Blooming, But Buyers Lacking

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Arrasate's flowers bloom in the spring, but he's having a hard time getting rid of them. He's a contract supplier for a new flower market near the United Nations. It opened Easter Sunday and he said only $750 worth of his flowers were sold.

"What the market needs," Arrasate declared, "is a lot of other florists selling cut and potted flowers. The competition will draw more people to the market."

He's invested $35,000 in the market's construction and design, Arrasate added, and as he sees it, "it's going to be a long haul to recuperate."

North African Jews Celebrate Spring Festival

JERUSALEM (AP) — President Zalman Shazar led the nation of Israel in greeting approximately 100,000 Jews of North African origin assembled in Jerusalem's Valley of the Cross Tuesday for their annual Maimouna, or spring festival. Many had camped overnight to be on hand for the dancing, music and preparing of traditional foods over improvised barbecues. The origin of the festival, which follows the end of the

Cable TV Potential 'Like Dynamite'

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer
Cable television in the future will not only entertain. It will educate, allow you to order your groceries from home, deliver your mail and your newspaper electronically, or provide a source of two-way personal communication.

Explorers in the industry even envision cable TV monitoring the conditions in your bedroom and maintaining optimum sleeping conditions. That same monitor could watch your body functions and react instantly in a medical emergency.

It amounts to a "wired society."

'Good Or Evil'
The possibilities are "like dynamite," said the Rev. Miles Jackson of Lincoln after watching a film presentation of those options for cable TV. It "has the potential of doing good or doing evil," he said.

Jackson, communications director for the Nebraska Conference of the United Methodist Church (UMC), and 51 other persons from 10 states are exploring those possibilities in a four-day Short Course in Cable TV that began Tuesday in Lincoln.

Sponsored by the UMC South Central Jurisdiction and the Broadcasting Film Commission of the National Council of Churches, the course is the second workshop in the nation bringing together cable TV franchise representatives, church people and community access people, Jackson said.

Broader Use
From cable TV's start in the late 1940s with simple transmissions, community access to cable TV enables transmission by schools, churches, city and state government proceedings, as well as public access, such as on an open forum channel.

Workshop participants, noting future possibilities, are attending primarily to learn "how to get a good franchise for a community on cable," Jackson said, and how to "resolve community placement questions."

As many as 30 competitors might bid for a community's franchise, he said. It could stay in that community for up to 15 years the franchise limitation imposed by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC).

Safeguard
The 15-year limitation is a built-in community safeguard to make the system keep up with the industry, he said, an incentive for the company to perform to have its franchise renewed.

Lincoln's four-year-old cable franchise, TV Transmission Inc., servicing the Lincoln-Hastings-Kearney area, is the 93rd market in the nation's top 100, Jackson said.

Fred Schroeder, TV Transmission Inc. general manager, explained that Lincoln's system falls under the FCC's grandfather clause: The system was established in Lincoln prior to March 31, 1977 to conform with FCC rules governing cable TV franchises.

Some of those rules include a 20-channel and two-way capability, and public and private access, Schroeder said.

Systems established after March 1972 must meet the FCC requirements before they can begin operation, he said, which means a substantial investment with little initial return, as well as competing with other systems for a community's franchise.

No Hurry
In Lincoln, Schroeder said, "We don't really need to look at public access until 1977," owing to the grandfather clause.

"Our first concern," he said, is "to make 20 channels available so we can add public access and government access. Then we will."

Twelve channels are available now in the TV Transmission Inc. market.

The Lincoln system must first broaden its scope of sending signals through the pencil-thin cable, called a "pipe" — a matter of replacing existing electronic equipment. Schroeder said that will probably take about two years, once begun.

12,000 Subscribers

Although "we have all of Lincoln wired, with the exception of the Air Park," Schroeder said there are currently about 12,000 cable TV subscribers, "a 20% penetration."

Business Big Yawn

It may have been a beautiful day in New York City, but business for this carriage driver at 59th Street and Fifth Avenue was a big yawn.

Raising Of $50,000 Sought In McCook

McCook (AP) — A retired professor of sociology and his wife have embarked on what seems to be an almost impossible project in McCook.

They are attempting to raise $50,000 by May 1 for a community project.

Dr. and Mrs. Byron Fox of McCook are heading up the effort to buy the old St. Catherine's Hospital building and turn it over to the community.

Dr. Fox has lived in McCook for about a year and was previously chairman of the sociology department at Carleton College in Carleton, Minn.

His wife is a licensed practical nurse.

The Foxes believe McCook is the logical place for the further development and care of the elderly and in vision the hospital as a geriatric care center with apartments for elderly people who want to be self-sufficient.

The apartments would rent for a modest fee based on the ability to pay with a maximum of 25 percent a month of a person's income.

However, bids on the building are to be opened May 1 and a commercial firm is understood to be submitting a bid.

Dr. Fox said if the hospital is purchased by a private company it is difficult to see how it could provide the services he recommends.

The retired professor said the center would be completely run by the community and a non-profit corporation.

The $50,000 would allow a bid to be made on the building and provide funds for maintenance during the time it would be prepared for new uses.

Dr. Fox said the cost of adapting the building will be "very moderate by comparison with the staggering cost of a new building with the present space."

He estimated a new building of the same area would cost between $1 million and $2 million.

Women Voters Nix Amendment 2

The Lincoln League of Women Voters is urging the defeat of Amendment No. 2 "in the interests of sound planning and responsible government."

League President Pat Stephen said the amendment would put tremendous power in the hands of one council member by requiring unanimous council approval of any road projects costing in excess of $15 million.

She added that the league has long supported the concept of broad citizen participation in the early stages of the planning process.

"The proposed charter amendment makes no provision for this," Mrs. Stephen stated. She contended that the techniques of requiring a vote of the people on certain major issues could be "used against the very people who suffer from a lack of representation," she said. She questioned whether a vote of the people should be required on such services as minimum housing standards, roads, schools or public housing, adding, "Elected officials are accountable for these services."

However, she suggested that the procedures outlined in the amendment would be more suitable for inclusion in a city ordinance instead of in the charter.

"The charter itself should not include detailed guidelines but should provide general guidelines for elected officials," Mrs. Stephen said.

Robinson Calls For Expansion Of City's Drug Fighting Efforts

The expansion of the Police Community Relations Drug Specialist project and a new system of treatment services for drug users was called for by City Council candidate John Robinson Tuesday.

Robinson said, "A quick survey of drug statistics in Lincoln shows that the war against drugs is far from over."

He added that arrest and conviction of a drug offender is "no guarantee that the individual drug problem has been solved."

Instead, Robinson called for an expansion of the present programs now operating in Lincoln, including:

—the Civilian Drug Specialist program and the Police Community Relations program.

—a system of treatment and rehabilitation services available through the courts, from "crash pads" to residential services.

Robinson also lauded the City Council for appropriating $30,000 for a Drug Abuse Treatment and Counseling Center.

The project is being developed by the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs.

"But this does not go far enough," he said, adding that the City Council should support an umbrella organization which would supply all needed services for drug abuse and treatment.

Candidate Thierstein Attacks Philosophy Of 'No-Growth'

City Council candidate William Thierstein Tuesday attacked the "no-growth" philosophy.

"The zero population enthusiasts and people who seem intent on putting a lid on economic growth for the city are forgetting some important economic facts to life," he said.

He pointed out that there are 3,500 Lincoln youth entering the job market annually and that more married women are now entering the job market.

Additionally, Thierstein said new positions must be made available so that people who are now under-employed can move up in the job market.

Speed Buffs Run In Family

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The family that speeds together stays together.

Jane Conrad's scheduled to watch her husband, astronaut Charles "Pete" Conrad, Jr., rocket into outer space for the fourth time May 15 aboard Skylab I. But more earthly concerns are pressing at the moment.

Conrad and his four sons are all speed buffs — racing car drivers, flying enthusiasts, and especially motorcyclists.

"It seems to be an inborn thing," said Mrs. Conrad. "Pete used to race motorcycles when he was 15 or so, and I guess my boys took after him."

Quiet Raises Cash

BURY ST. EDMUNDS, England (AP) — Shelter, an organization for homeless people, uses the "hush-in" at public schools to raise money. Parents contribute 2½ cents for each minute their children remain quiet during recess periods. Teachers are the judges.

Senior Citizen Tag Irks Leader Of Gray Panthers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Maggie Kuhn doesn't mind being called old. But she does mind the senior citizen tag. And that's why the 67-year-old Philadelphia organizer of the Gray Panthers.

"Our society automatically scraps people just like old automobiles," she says. "It's the Detroit syndrome, but the latest models are not always the best." She and some 600 other Gray Panthers across the country are lobbying for improved living conditions for America's older citizens. Their efforts range from attempts to get reduced fares on public transportation to better medical care.

She calls herself an "older adult who is initiating change by rocking the boat." Her targets are government officials, bankers, "the 'fat cats' of big industry and anyone else who tries to run the lives of the elderly."

Wheelchairs and canes By threatening to block trolley cars with wheelchairs and canes, the Gray Panthers succeeded in getting Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority (SEPTA) to cut fares to 10 cents for senior citizens during nonrush hour periods.

And with the help of consumer advocate Ralph Nader the group got Philadelphia's largest bank to set up a special savings account for the elderly with four free money orders a month and no minimum balance, plus a no collateral loan policy. Now the First Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Co. is considering a plan on financial counseling for their older clients.

Margaret E. Kuhn, white-haired and weighing 95 pounds, organized the Gray Panthers three years ago with the help of five other elderly persons. Now the group has chapters in New York City, Syracuse, N.Y.; Dayton, Ohio; Denver, Chicago; Los Angeles; San Francisco; Santa Fe, N.M. and Washington, D.C.

Young Volunteers It also now includes about 20 college-age volunteers because, Maggie says, both the young and old "have been put down and discriminated against."

"Our accumulated skill is useful. There is a revolutionary and universal factor about our movement; everyone is going to get old and people in a technical society are frightened about that."

"Gray Panthers is a fun name," says Maggie. "It's a symbol of social action and social change and there's a certain militancy, rather than just a

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

The average golfer covers about six miles on an 18-hole course about 6,500 yards in length, says the Nebraska Medical Association.

Though the possibility of golf as a physical exercise depends on the availability of a golf course, many persons can and do practice on driving ranges or play on short pitch and putt courses.

The golfer who carries his own golf bag increases the exercise value of the sport. Some exercise is obtained in striking the ball. A golfer who does not carry his own bag burns about five calories per minute, which is a couple of calories more than simple walking. (Calories help measure the relative value of one exercise against another. Running at 10 miles an hour burns 15 calories per minute.)

Golfing has its hazards, says the Nebraska Medical Association. Back sprains and hand blisters are the chief hazards directly attributed to the game. Occasionally, a golfer is hit by a flying ball. Some deaths occur from lightning because a golfer took refuge under an isolated tree on the course during a thunderstorm.

Golf is primarily a walking exercise and a good sport for every age because one competes with oneself. The earliest mention of golf appears to be a 15th century Scottish law prohibiting the sport, says Guinness Sports Record Book.

Job Prospects Bright For Engineering Students

With graduation approaching, the job prospects for students earning engineering degrees from the University of Nebraska this year are bright.

"Based upon the number of offers that a graduating engineer can reasonably expect, the picture is a great deal better than two years ago or even last year," says Frank M. Hallgren, director of placement at the University of Nebraska - Lincoln.

"We still have not returned to the demand situation of a few years ago when firms were making up to five offers for every graduate that they were able to hire, however," he said.

"Career prospects for engineers are definitely on the upswing and many experts in the manpower field are actually predicting a shortage of engineers in the nation," reports Dr. Donald M. Edwards, assistant dean of the College of Engineering and Architecture.

"When the job market tightened up in the late 60s and early 70s fewer students enrolled in engineering programs at schools throughout the country. Thus, now when the demand for engineers is again rising, the number of graduates is declining.

"According to a report from the Engineering Manpower Committee in 1972, 48,000 new engineers will be needed in 1973 and only 42,000 will be earning bachelor's degrees in engineering from U.S. schools. The demand is forecast at about man of industrial and management systems engineering, said seniors in his department also have a choice of jobs. "There are also more opportunities than ever before for industrial engineers to remain and work in Nebraska," he said.

Tax Reports, Payments Now Due

Secretary of State Allen Beermann said Tuesday that occupation tax reports and taxes owed by Nebraska profit making corporations and foreign corporations are now due.

Beermann said the reports must be filed and the taxes paid not later than Aug. 1 of this year or the corporations would be dissolved for non-payment of taxes on Aug. 2 as provided by law.

To date, the secretary of state said, only about one-third of the reports and tax funds have been received by the corporation division of his office.

In total, about 60,000 corporations are subject to the reporting and taxation laws, Beermann said.

He also said that non-profit biennial reports and fees are now due and if not paid by June 1, the non-profit corporations would be dissolved for non-payment of fees on June 2.

ACTION LINE

Or Write P.O. Box 81669, Lincoln, NE 68501

I left a roll of film to be developed at the Green Cross store at 11th and O. But when I went back the store was closed for remodeling, according to a sign in the window. I would like to get my pictures. What can I do?

—Mrs. Ray Edgar, Sprague

ACTION LINE: Jack Blackman, president of Green Cross Corp. of Kansas City, Kan., says that arrangements were made with the photo finisher to mail the prints direct to customers of the Lincoln store.

Your pictures should be getting into the mail this week, says Blackman. If you don't get your pictures soon, please contact ACTION LINE again.

Blackman says that Green Cross is closed for more than remodeling. Their operation in Lincoln is finished unless some attractive new location crops up in the future. Their store was in the way of the proposed City Services Building.

Why isn't something being done about the mess at the corner of 70th and Platte where a building was torn down?

—E.E., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Something is or soon will be.

The lot has only recently been sold as the site for a 14-unit apartment complex. Work is expected to get underway there in about two weeks, according to John Wenzl at Action Realty.

In the meantime, Action will get a man there to clean up a bit. The junker car on the lot has been reported to the mayor's office and some changes should be observable on the corner soon.

I have studied two languages through the high school level. Now I have decided I would like further study. My hope is to become an interpreter of some sort. I would like to know if there is an alternative to the University of Nebraska in this field.

—M.G., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: If you've ruled out NU you may have some difficulty in Lincoln, assuming you have also ruled out Lincoln's private colleges.

Dr. D. E. Allison with NU's modern language department says it's possible to educate yourself through records, tapes and books available at local bookstores. He says that a degree is not necessarily a prerequisite for interpreting but great proficiency in language is.

There are no private language schools in Lincoln, according to Dr. Allison. You might consider private tutoring if your budget allows. Contact the NU modern language department for the names of competent tutors.

I'm moving out of state and would like to know how to ship a 20-gallon aquarium.

—V.Z., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Garry Michaud with the Great Plains Aquarium Society says the aquarium itself should be emptied, packed and moved like any other glass item — in a box larger than itself, protected by some filler like old newspapers.

The fish are the tough part. Unless you are particularly attached to the fish you have or they are rare and expensive, Michaud suggests that you sell them or give them to friends and restock in your new location.

If you want to move them, they can get along for about 24 hours, he says, in plastic bags, packed in plastic foam beverage coolers or boxes available from an aquarium dealer. You can stretch that time by buying a battery-operated air pump for the move. But look ahead, you will need to have accommodations ready for your fish when you reach your destination.

Or you might be able to board your fish with another hobbyist who would keep them until you could become established and then ship them to you by air freight.

I read in ACTION LINE about the people who bought the husky pup that soon died and would like to offer suggestions to people who are considering buying a dog.

—Andrea Vrana, Schuyler

ACTION LINE: Since ACTION LINE often receives complaints from unhappy puppy buyers, we'll take some space for preventive action. We've checked these hints with a local member of the American Kennel Club (AKC) who concurs.

If you are buying what is advertised as an AKC pup, get AKC papers. You should get a registration application and a transfer of ownership or bill of sale with full particulars — sire and dam names and AKC numbers. These must be signed.

Check the pup's health record — worming and shots. A local veterinarian suggests that you buy the dog subject to examination by your own trusted vet.

Get a first-hand look at the mother and, if possible, the father of the dog. Observe them for health and temperament. Ask for the pedigree — colors represented and achievements.

Make sure the pup you're buying has been in a sturdy, clean, concrete-floored run with plenty of water and nutritious food, never just in a crate or cage. As a general rule and especially when children will be in the pup's new home, don't take a puppy under eight weeks old. A pup that is rushed from his mother at three or four weeks can become an emotional cripple.

Ms. Vrana says that most reputable breeders will guarantee a puppy for 48 hours after purchase, adequate time to get it checked.

I am having difficulty with an order for some glassware that I placed with Hammond Sportswear in Lincoln. I sent the order in November or October last year and my check was cashed Nov. 16. Dec. 1 they said they were having production and shipping difficulties and would get the order out early in 1973 if I wanted to wait. I said I would.

Later I decided I didn't want to wait any longer and wrote several times asking for my refund. No answer. Will you check?

—Mrs. R. W. Lowry, Cairo

ACTION LINE: Hammond acknowledges difficulty with the glassware and says that refunds have been sent in many instances. They will check your order records and be in touch with you soon.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and consequently misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance:

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wearout Allowance
40,000 miles.....	Pro-rated on Miles Driven
45 month.....	$13.00
40 month.....	10.00
35 month.....	8.00
30 month.....	6.00
25 month.....	4.00
20 month.....	2.00
15 month.....	1.00

Tread wear expectancy after date not apply to tires used commercially.

MISS PAMELA ELLIOTT

An announcement which will be of particular interest to University of Nebraska campus circles is made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Elliott of Cambridge, who reveal the betrothal of their daughter, Pamela Diann, to Stephen William Ruff, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Ruff of Scottsbluff.

Saturday, June 16, has been named as the wedding date.

Miss Elliott will be graduated in May from the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority, and where she is majoring in English and education.

Mr. Ruff also is a senior at the University of Nebraska and is majoring in social sciences.

MISS KATHRYN CRUMLEY

Of interest to both town and campus circles is the engagement of Miss Kathryn Ann Crumley, daughter of Dr. Wilma Crumley, and the late William Escal Crumley, to Larry James Rollins, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Rollins of Kearney, which is announced this morning by the bride-elect's mother.

The wedding is planned for the early summer.

Miss Crumley is a coed at the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Towne Club.

Mr. Rollins will be graduated in May from the University of Nebraska where he is a member of Chi Phi fraternity.

Officers Elected At Woman's Day

Mrs. J. LaVerne Jay was re-elected president of the Woman's Wesleyan Educational Council (WWEC) of Nebraska at that group's 77th annual Woman's Day which took place on the Nebraska Wesleyan University campus on Tuesday, April 24.

The installation ceremonies were held during the council's annual meeting which was followed by the 77th birthday luncheon. Featured speaker at the luncheon was Dr. Vance

Rogers, NWU president, whose address was entitled "The Community of Wesleyan."

Methodist women from throughout the state, as well as friends of NWU were in attendance at the Woman's Day festivities for which Mrs. Frederick E. Blumer and Mrs. John H. Frey served as co-chairmen. Mrs. Roger Rhodes served as chairman of the birthday luncheon committee.

Other officers elected and installed at the meeting include

Mrs. Richard E. Carlyon, vice president, Mrs. Wayne McIntosh, recording secretary, Mrs. Herbert M. Casey, corresponding secretary, and Miss Bernice Halbert, treasurer. The council trustees include Mrs. Mae Ziegler of Omaha, Miss Nettie Clark, and Mrs. A. R. Marquardt.

Attendants And Parties

On Saturday evening, April 28, the wedding of Miss Jayne Ann Summers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn D. Summers, and Kevin Gemmell, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene W. Gemmell, will take place at St. John's Catholic Church.

This morning Miss Summers is announcing the members of the bridal entourage which includes, as the maid of honor, Miss Pam Knoell. The two bridesmaids are Miss Susan Copple and Miss Patty Weesner, and completing the foursome is Mrs. Robert Jarrett, the bridesmatron. Lisa Ayres is to be the flower girl.

Milan Steube will serve Mr. Gemmell as best man, and the groomsmen will be Douglas Gemmell, brother of the bridegroom; Pat Gibbons and John Crose. Seating the guests will be Wayne Summers, brother of the bride; Kirk Gemmell, brother of the bridegroom, and Robert Olson. Scott Gemmell will be the ring bearer.

Miss Summers has been the incentive for numerous pre-nuptial courtesies during the past few weeks. The first of the parties in her honor was on March 21, when the hostesses, Mrs. James Weesner and her daughter, Miss Patty Weesner, entertained at a linen shower at their home.

The following week, on March 31, Miss Summers was again an honoree, and this time at a brunch and a miscellaneous shower for which Mrs. T. Carl Knoell and her daughter, Miss Pam Knoell were hostesses.

Then, on the following day, April 1, the bride-elect's aunts, Mrs. Gale Summers, Mrs. Merle Summers, Mrs. Kay Higgings, Mrs. Clarence Siedhoff were the party hostesses, and the soon-to-be bride was presented with a kitchen shower.

Complimenting Miss Summers on Saturday, April 14, were Mrs. Ed Copple and her daughter, Miss Susie Copple, who entertained Miss Summers' bridal attendants and their mothers at luncheon at their home.

On the evening of that same day Miss Summers and her fiancé shared honors when Mr. and Mrs. Clair Marshall had a party at their home. Ten couples were invited.

The Birdie And Bogey Season Opens

No raindrops were falling on their heads, the course was all that it should have been, the golf clubs were polished, and after an early breakfast the feminine golfers at the Lincoln Country Club were ready to open their 1973 season.

If there were any birdies during the Tuesday morning play, no one reported them. As for bogeys — well, we didn't hear about those, either.

The LCC women golfers divided into foursomes for the 9-hole morning play, and we learned that two of the foursomes tied for the low score of

In one of the foursomes were Mrs. Louis Roper, Mrs. M. P. Brotsma, Mrs. Jack Phillips and Mrs. John Hoppe.

The second foursome included one golfer well known for her championships — Mrs. Paul Hyland. Playing with Mrs.

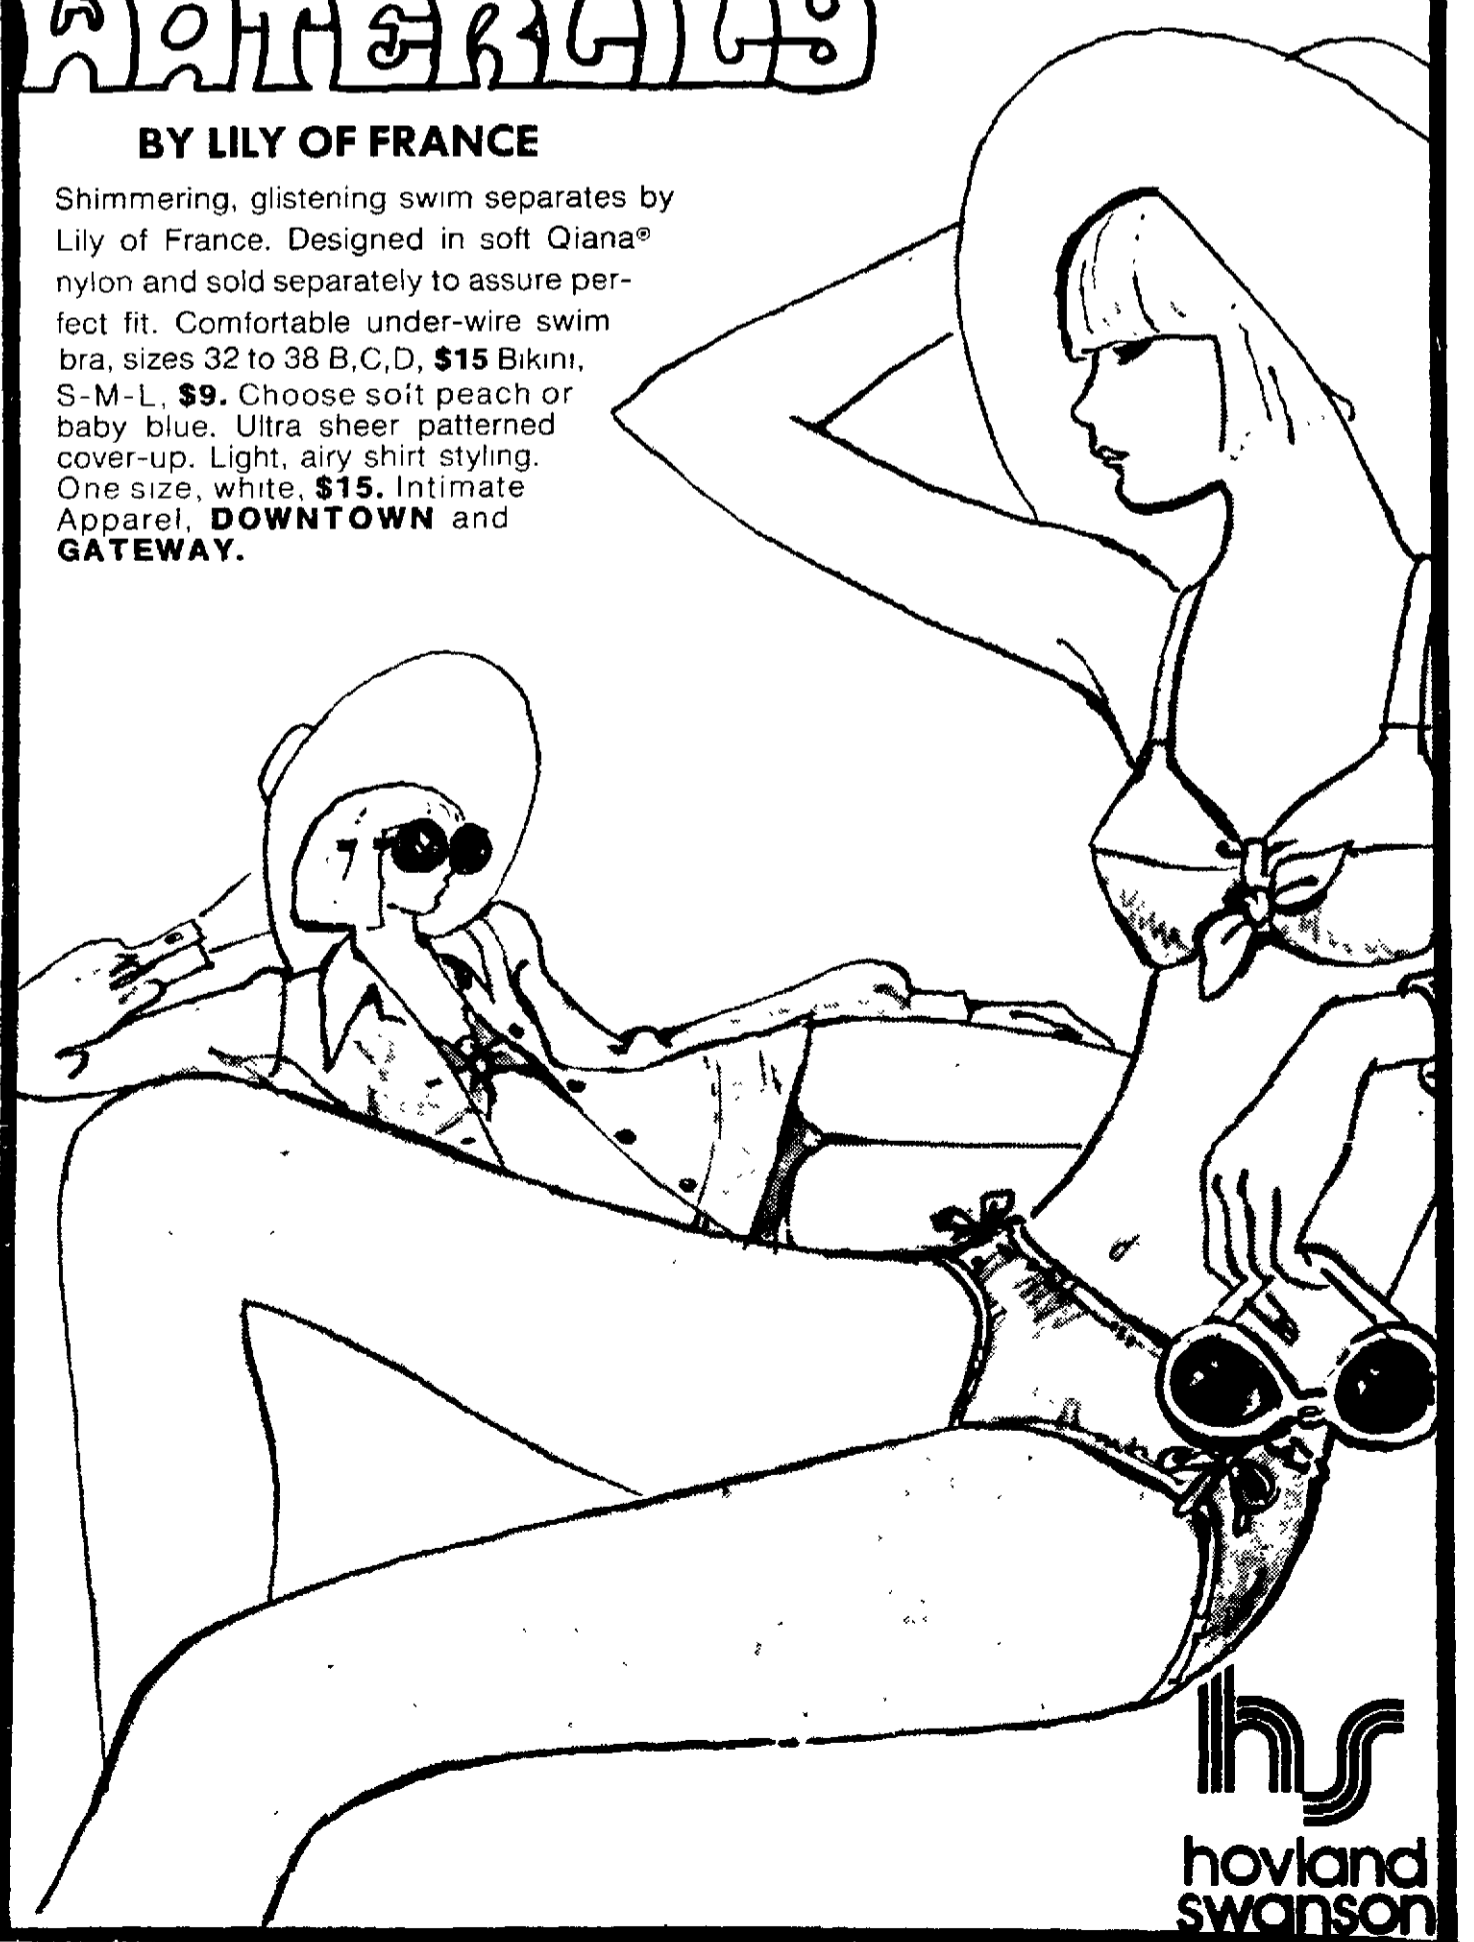

Hyland were Mrs. Wyman Kenagy, Mrs. Ed Taber and Mrs. Ben Joyce.

Clean-A-Mile Day

America's young persons are concerned about their environment.

The Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts of the Lincoln area will take an active part in Keep America Beautiful Day on Saturday, April 28.

And in addition the 4-H Clubs of Lancaster County will be clearing trash from county roadsides on their Clean-A-Mile day which has been rescheduled for that same Saturday, April 28.

According to the Lancaster County Extension Service the public is invited to join the 4-Hers in the environmental improvement project in which county and state road departments are cooperating.

Any persons desiring to lend assistance in cleaning the roadsides may report between 9 and 11 o'clock Saturday morning to any of the selected locations including Indian Hills Church, the east lot of Holmes Park, the north gate of Pioneer Park, Waverly School, Malcolm School, Sprague-Martell School, and the Hickman Church.

Trucks and pick-up bags will be provided.

Additional information may be obtained from the County Extension Office — 475-3385.

Chit Chat with Roxi

Teenagers have problems as do all people and whether that teenager is a girl or a boy makes no difference in the matter of worrisome questions. Talk your problems over with Roxi — Write to her in care of The Lincoln Star, Lincoln, Neb.

Dear Roxi:

I hope the boy I really like is going to ask me to the prom, but I've heard another boy is planning to ask me, too. I would prefer to go with the boy I really like, but if the other boy asks me sooner should I say no and hope the boy I like will ask me or should I go with the other boy and be assured of a date?

Julie B.

Dear Julie:

If the other boy asks you first, I would go with him. Depending on the boy you like to ask you, is asking for a disappointment because boys have habits of doing the unexpected. So take nothing for granted. Go with whoever asks you first. Do not turn down the first one and then show up at the prom with the second one because the first boy who invited you will undoubtedly hear that the boy you are with asked you later, and that will hurt his feelings and your reputation.

Dear Roxi:

Now that I will be entering college this fall I know I'll be meeting many new girls. My girlfriend keeps telling me I'm the only one for her, but I don't think she's the only one for me. I want to get out, date other girls and find out if she is the one but how do I explain this to my girlfriend?

Jeff G.

Dear Jeff:

Explain to your girlfriend that you think it would be better if both of you got out and dated others to find out if you are really right for one another. Tell her that if any relationship is to last a lifetime, the two people involved must be sure they are right for each other. If she doesn't go for this, then she isn't ready for any kind of a relationship, because she isn't willing to see if it will last.

Dear Roxi:

At all the parties I've been attending lately there has been booze, lots of it. The people who are drinking it and getting drunk are all friends of mine. It really bothers me to see them without their heads on straight, making no sense at all. But they all do it because it is the thing to do and now they're on me because I don't drink. Fact is I don't like the taste of the stuff. What can I give them for an answer when they start bugging me about it again?

B.G.

Dear B.G.:

Simply tell them anybody can get drunk, but not everybody can remain sober, that will stop them in their tracks. It takes courage to say no, but it's easier if you can answer them, quickly, gently and firmly.

ABBY: tell him foursome is boresome

DEAR ABBY: Neil and I have been married for three years. It's the second time around for both of us and I am determined to make a go of this marriage. Neil is 53 and I'm 50.

My problem: Every weekend Neil wants to entertain another couple on our boat. The other couple always turns out to be a cute young female employee and her husband.

Now, I can see that the purpose of these weekend outings is to impress the new employee. But last weekend was the last straw. The girl (about 22) wore skin-tight pants and a sheer blouse, to show off her figure, which was beautiful. (I am not bad for my age, but I can't compete with that.) My husband kept calling her "Honey," "Doll," and "Babe." The young husband sat like a bump on a log and tried to make small talk with me.

Should I go along with entertaining such couples? We have plenty of friends our own age, but my husband prefers these kids. Please advise me.

JEALOUS IN NEWPORT

DEAR JEALOUS: Tell your husband that if he wants to entertain his employees, you will go along with an annual Christmas party, but weekends on a boat with that kind of foursome is boresome.

DEAR ABBY: I cannot tolerate smoke, but it seems the world is geared for smokers. In waiting rooms, and in almost all public places, if the nonsmoker wants to escape the pollution of smokers, he has to find a smoke-free corner where he can breathe some fresh air.

Why don't they post NO SMOKING signs in all places where people gather, and provide the smokers with a dinky, little airtight room off to the side somewhere where they can all crowd in together, smoke to their hearts' content, and inhale each other's smoke? Then, the fresh air will be left for those of us who are more deserving of it.

SICK OF SMOKERS

DEAR SICK: I'm with you. And to the next smoker who asks me if I "mind" if he smokes, I shall say: "Why don't you do us both a favor and refrain?"

DEAR ABBY: My first letter to any kind of newspaper, but I feel so strongly on the question raised by "Dad in Hackensack," I must express myself. Believe me, the money loaned to anyone in a family (or a friend for that matter) should be accompanied by a cold hard note. It may seem unfriendly, but once it is an established fact, it is the most friendly way to handle a loan, and avoids a lot of problems in the future.

When my husband and I borrowed from our parents, it was a businesslike procedure. True, we paid only 3 per cent interest, and the note was renewed, but it was all on paper in case something happened to any of us.

I know elderly people who have only their Social Security to live on because they foolishly "loaned" their own children money, never dreaming they needed a note, and of course they never got one penny back.

Please print this, Abby. Some people are much too trusting. PASADENA PARENTS CONFIDENTIAL TO "READY FOR A NEW BROOM IN LAGUNA HILLS": A new broom may sweep clean, but the old broom knows where the dirt is.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

To do it right doesn't mean it will cost more. See the professionals...

Spotlight On India

The social and political progress of present-day India — with special emphasis on social customs including marriage and Hindu customs, as well as education and curriculum — will be highlighted at the YWCA World Relations Forum on Thursday afternoon, April 26.

The guest speaker for the 1:30 o'clock event will be Mrs. Premalata Bansal, a resident of Lincoln for the past four years, who is a native of Jaipur, India. Mrs. Bansal currently is working on her Ph.D. degree in political science at the University of Nebraska.

Sponsored by the YWCA World Relations Committee, the Forum meets monthly for informal discussions of the world dimension of the YWCA which is active in the social, political, and educational progress of 80 nations.

Opening lead - king of hearts. This deal comes from a team match. At both tables the contract was six diamonds and the opening lead a heart, but the slam went down at one table and was made at the other for a gain of 1,470 points.

At the first table declarer ruffed the heart and drew two rounds of trumps. Observing the 3-1 division, South shifted his attention to clubs.

He led the K-Q, hoping to find the suit divided 3-2, in which event he planned to draw East's last trump. He would then make six or seven, depending on the location of the king of spades. This method of play would likewise succeed if East had four clubs, because South could continue with clubs and ruff the fourth round in dummy to avoid a club loser.

The plan was certainly reasonable, but, unfortunately, East trumped the queen and later scored the king of spades to put South down one.

It would not have helped declarer to play three rounds of trumps at once, for in that case he would have lost a club and a spade to go down one.

At the second table South also played two rounds of trumps and the king of clubs. But then he led a low club from dummy, not the queen.

East trumped and returned a heart. South ruffed, cashed the queen of clubs, ruffed another heart, and then played the A-9 of clubs, discarding the Q-J of spades from dummy. As a result, he wound up making the slam.

Nevertheless, it should be pointed out that East erred when he trumped the four of clubs. Had he discarded a spade or a heart and retained his seemingly useless seven of trumps, he would have defeated the slam.

Tired of the common ground?

WHY NOT LA CHOY CHOW MEIN INSTEAD?

When you're just about to serve that same old grind again, stop and think, "Why not La Choy Chow Mein?"

Then reach for La Choy Chicken, Beef or Shrimp Chow Mein in the handy bi-pack. Heat up the meat and gravy, and then add the vegetables. (They're packed separately so they'll stay fresh and crisp in the traditional Chinese manner.)

La Choy Chow Mein is ready to serve in minutes, so keep it handy and serve it often. It's a delicious change of pace, and there will be times when it certainly beats the common ground!

And don't forget to use La Choy Chow Mein Noodles and La Choy Soy Sauce to complete your chow mein dinner. Or use them to give your own recipes a refreshing new accent. La Choy Chop Suey Vegetables are great for this, too.

Why not swing American with La Choy?

The News Of Town And Country

It was a busy weekend for residents of the Town and Country communities who spent the Easter holiday pursuing a variety of interesting activities. However, before we relate the details of all the goings-on, we'd like to mention two club meetings that took place during the very recent past.

Firth

A very interesting get-together was on the agenda on Monday evening, April 9, for the members of the Legion Auxiliary. The ladies gathered at the Legion Hall, and the featured speaker for the event was Dennis Nosal, who is presently superintendent of the Norris School District.

Mr. Nosal's topic was "Children and Youth," and a discussion session which covered a variety of topics followed his talk.

Davey

The members of the Davey Woman's Club gathered at the home of Mrs. Hilbert Anderson on Tuesday afternoon, April 17, for their monthly meeting. Thirteen members were on hand, and guests included Mrs. Myrl Miller, Mrs. Merle Backemeyer and son, Brad of Elmwood, and Mrs. Byron Peterson.

Assisting Mrs. Anderson with hostess duties was Mrs. Herman Fahleson, and Mrs. Russell Blomstrom taught the ladies how to make polydomes.

During the afternoon, those in attendance also discussed plans for a club tour which is scheduled to take place on Tuesday, May 15.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Shandera on Sunday, April 22, included Miss Marilyn Shandera and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shandera and son, Eddie, all of Lincoln.

There was a very special reason for the get-together — it seems that Mrs. Shandera's mother, Mrs. Louise Tejral, observed her 89th birthday on Saturday, April 21, and she was the guest of honor at the family dinner which took place on Sunday afternoon.

We also understand that Mrs. Tejral would like to say a special word of thanks to all of the friends and family members who sent her birthday greetings.

Saturday evening dinner guests at the Shandera home were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Morrissey of Lincoln.

Bennet

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Jensen were host and hostess at their

Attendants Revealed

Making announcement this morning of the members of her bridal party is Miss Rita Jacox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Jacox of Milford, whose marriage to James W. Douglass Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Douglass of Columbus will be an event of Saturday evening, May 5.

For the 6:30 o'clock ceremony, which will be solemnized in Seward, Miss Jacox has chosen Miss Linda Ficken of Lincoln to be her honor attendant. Mrs. Lawrence Jacox of Waukegan, Ill., and Mrs. Stanley Jacox of Milford will be bridesmaids, and Miss Kathi Douglass of Columbus will serve as bridesmaid.

Charles Rogers of Council Bluffs, Iowa, will attend Mr. Douglass as best man, and the corps of groomsmen will include Dennis Hansen of Kearney, Kurt Koch of Shickley, and Ronald Sedlak of Columbus. Stewart Dale of Grand Island and John Jacox of Milford will seat the guests.

Lighting the chancel candles will be Miss Jeanie Blecha of Minden and Kevin Beranek of Crete, and Miss Joani Blecha of Minden and Kenneth Beranek of Denton will serve as flower girl and ring bearer respectively.

Miss Jacox was graduated from Kearney State College where she majored in elementary education, and where she is a member of Chi Omega sorority.

Mr. Douglass also is a graduate of Kearney State, and he is a member of Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity.

home on Thursday evening, April 19, when they entertained a group of guests following Maundy Thursday services.

Taking part in the get-together were the Rev. George Roquet and Mrs. Roquet, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Steward, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Nisley, Mr. and Mrs. Ross

Nisley and Mrs. Mae Pedersen. Easter Sunday guests at the Jensen home included Mrs. Bertha Stall and Mr. and Mrs. Owen Jensen, all of Lincoln; Mr. and Mrs. Winton Jensen of Leawood, Kan.; Mr. and Mrs. Warren Jensen, Mrs. Bessie Lingle, Miss Dorothy Bruss, Robert Bruss, and Mrs. Mae Pedersen.

May bride-elect Miss Lois Ellis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Ellis, was the guest of honor at a prenuptial party which took place on Friday evening, April 20, at the Merle Jensen home. Mrs. Ross Nisley served as assistant hostess, and during the party, the 24 guests in attendance presented the soon-to-be bride with a miscellaneous shower.

Miss Ellis will become the bride of Lyle Stephen, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Stephen of Lincoln on Friday, May 4.

The members of the Bennet Community Church Ladies' Circle will meet on Wednesday afternoon, April 25, in the church basement. The business meeting will begin at 2 o'clock, and afterwards, those in attendance will be entertained by the Lancaster County Chorus — a vocal group comprised of extension club members, and directed by Mrs. Bob Lemke of Walton.

McEWENS . . . release pigeons at Seward I-80 bridge.

It's a dazzling sight to see Mr. and Mrs. Homer McEwen's flock of racing pigeons wheeling around in the sky above the McEwen home in east Lincoln. They struggle into the wind and then, their white undersides flashing into the sun, turn in a slow arc and glide. Around and around.

McEwen lets them out twice a day to stretch their wings. The younger ones stay on the roof of the loft, or cling to TV antennas. The older, bolder birds fly ecstatic circles over the neighborhood for a half-hour or longer.

But they always come back. McEwen is their meal ticket.

"They sure love to fly," he says, rattling a can of feed to lure them back. The sweeping circles become smaller and lower until a few touch down and crawl into the one-way "trap" to their nests. The others soon follow suit.

"You have to keep training these birds," says McEwen, noting that the first race of the season — Grand Island to Lincoln — is scheduled for April 29. "All winter they've been sitting around doing nothing but eating grain."

During racing season, they don't get as much feed — which naturally enhances their homing tendencies. Meanwhile, he says,

"you try to train them so they home more surely than the year before." That regimen includes taking them (and pigeons owned by other Lincoln pigeon "flyers") out to the Seward I-80 interchange twice a week and letting them fly home.

By race time they're in top condition. Some will cover the one, two, three and four-day routes at speeds up to 55 miles an hour. Races start from such places as Scottsbluff, Dallas, Tex.; Laramie, Wyo.; and Brownsville, Tex.

There are 14 racing pigeon owners in Lincoln and 42 in Omaha who race together as a combined association in the American Racing Pigeon Union. Each owner is assigned an air-distance figure from the starting point to his loft, and each has a special clock which marks a bird's return time only when a band from its leg is placed in a capsule and dropped into the clock. A yards-per-minute speed is computed from the time and distance.

If past years are any indication, the McEwens' pigeons will win some prizes. But they won't win much money, if any. Most of the races are just for fun.

"It's worth it just to see them in flight," McEwen says.

ADC, Retarded Riders Held Up

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The major appropriations riders stalled by the Legislature's present ban on additional spending from the general fund would provide increased funding for dependent children and the mentally retarded.

LB234A is the largest pending appropriations rider, providing a $3.3 million general fund addition to increase payments for the program of aid to dependent children.

The ban prohibits action on LB311A would provide an additional $500,000 general fund appropriation for state aid to community programs for the mentally retarded.

No Spending

The Legislature is currently operating under a policy of permitting no final action on spending bills which would affect the state tax-supported general fund other than the operational budget bill, two salary measures and reappropriations for capital construction already underway.

Gov. J. James Exon's 1973-74 capital construction budget bill, LB256, and would prohibit final reading consideration of an Exon bill requesting supplementary appropriations for his operational budget bill.

Legislative budget policy also drew the line on consideration of additional deficit appropriations bills. That would appear to wipe out Exon's $2,320,930 deficit budget bill for state aid for the construction of municipal waste treatment facilities.

That proposal, LB505, providing state aid at a 12 1/2% level, had been amended by the Appropriations Committee to provide state matching funds at a 5% level.

Already Passed

But the Legislature has already passed Exon's operational budget bill, LB259, which encompasses a 12 1/2% state match for future waste treatment construction.

Also in jeopardy under current legislative directives may be funding for the increased homestead tax exemption program for the needy aged authorized by the 1972 Legislature.

Bills increasing state aid to public schools apparently could be funded this year with federal revenue sharing funds, thus avoiding the prohibition against additional general fund spending.

But the spending ban apparently could affect the state claims bill, LB542, and the proposed new alcoholism treatment program which would be financed from the general fund with increases in state beer and liquor taxes.

No Appropriations

The alcoholism treatment bill does not carry an appropriations rider—at least, not yet.

But among the appropriations riders is a $13,706 general fund addition for the Department of Health to carry out the provisions of LB449, the statewide water fluoridation act, now on final reading.

A $13,373 general fund appropriations rider is attached to LB110, which would alter the composition of judicial nominating commissions.

Among other appropriations riders hung up on the spending policy are bills funding a new weights and measures law, added investigators for the State Patrol, changes in the Department of Environmental Control and alteration of the Mexican-American Commission.

County Board OKs Buying Property At 11th, South

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday approved an agreement with the State of Nebraska to purchase for $75,000 approximately 66,000 square feet of property adjacent to the former Orthopedic Hospital at 11th and South.

Lancaster County Att. Paul Douglas told the board that it is hoped that closing of the transaction can be completed by June 1.

May 1 Deadline To File Tax Valuation Appeals

Lancaster County property owners are reminded that May 1 is the deadline for filing appeals to the Lancaster County Board of Equalization on property tax valuations for 1973.

Lancaster County Assessor Fritz Meyer said that only 17 complaints have been filed to date as compared to 60 which had been filed at this time last year.

Felony Assault Charge Filed In Attack On Park Ranger Koci

A felony charge was filed Tuesday in Lancaster County Court against John Welch, 23, of 1321 So. 27th in connection with the alleged assault on Lincoln Park Ranger Gary Koci Sunday afternoon at Pioneer Park.

Welch was charged with assaulting and resisting a law enforcement officer. A preliminary hearing was set for May 10. Bond was set at $2,000.

Koci sustained facial cuts and bruises in the incident, according to Lincoln police reports.

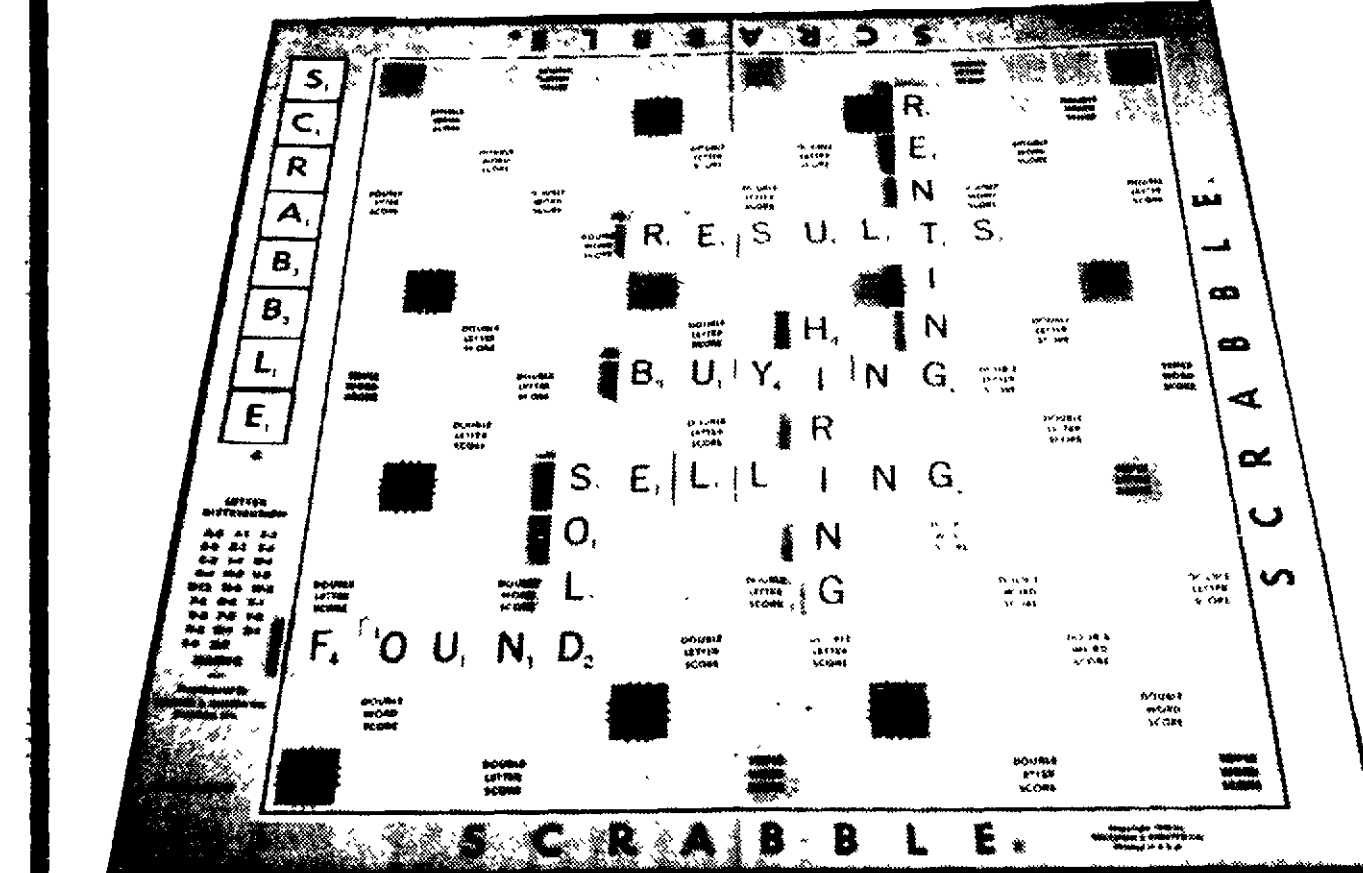

Police said Koci had arrested

However, concern over possible need for the property for parking and /or expansion of Lancaster Manor prompted the commissioners to seek another site.

In other business, the commissioners Tuesday rejected all bids and proposals on civil defense equipment and voted to put the equipment out for bid again.

The action followed a report by Civil Defense Director Jasper Skinner on the bids and a subsequent proposal by one of the bidders which was less than the original bid and included more items but was still not the lowest bid submitted.

Skinner said that the low bid was for equipment which other towns have felt was unsatisfactory and that he felt the equipment of the bidder who issued a subsequent proposal was superior since that equipment was what the county now has and maintenance has been minimal.

However, the commissioners and Douglas indicated that they thought it was unwise and improper to accept proposals submitted after the bids had been received.

Douglas said that in his opinion the board should reject all bids and readvertise but that it would be "highly improper" to accept a proposal after the bids had been opened.

In other action, the board: —Approved making application for 1974 inter-governmental Personal Act funds for a study for Lancaster County.

—Approved increasing the rates for foster care in boarding homes as recommended by the Juvenile Court.

—Deferred for one week action on a proposed personnel plan for the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR).

Judge Denies Orleans School District Request

Judge Norris Chadderdon of the Harlan County District Court has denied the request of the Orleans School District for an order enjoining the Orleans Education Association from proceeding with an action it has filed in the Nebraska Court of Industrial Relations seeking settlement of a dispute over teachers wages.

On April 11, 1973, Chadderdon entered a temporary restraining order directing the association to cease prosecuting its action in the Court of Industrial Relations until a hearing was held before him.

Upon hearing the matter, Chadderdon determined that all of the issues which the school district sought to raise concerning claims of unconstitutionality of the legislation creating the Court of Industrial Relations could be determined in the Court of Industrial Relations' action.

3% Truck Rate Hike OKd By Commission

The State Public Service Commission has granted a 3% increase in rates charged for intrastate shipments effective May 1.

The rate boost is the third approved by the commission in slightly more than a year for hauling general commodities.

Commissioner Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont has filed a dissent in the rate increase, contending the boost was being given on the basis of anticipated future truck line cost rather than existing expenses.

Rasmussen and John Swanson voted against the rate increase, but were overruled by Commissioners Robert Marland, James Munnely and Duane Gay.

Marland, commission chairman, said truckers' evidence indicated increased labor costs resulted in a 5.5% hike in overall operating costs.

Need For Coordinating Rural Help Seen

By IVAN TRAVNICEK
Star Staff Writer

The need for coordinating groups between state and local governments and institutions higher education and coordinating groups within those two organizations was stressed Tuesday night as the top priority before effective planning for public services in rural areas can be achieved.

Don Nelson, director of the State Office of Planning and Programming, was speaking before the Conference on Planning for Public Services in Rural Areas when he said the mass of overlapping federal programs applicable to this area makes it necessary for greater coordination than has taken place at the present time.

Nelson said he was "convinced that well over 50% of the population in the United States wants to live in non-metropolitan areas," making the need for an effective effort in planning for public services in rural areas an imperative.

Nelson felt the most resistance to coordination in colleges and universities would fall into two areas. First, he said, college administrators may oppose it because they simply lack the ability to coordinate the many nearly autonomous bodies in their college.

They might also oppose it, he said, because "institutions of higher learning as a whole avoid too close a contact with statehouses because of fears the autonomy of the institution itself might be endangered."

But if both state and local governments and institutions of higher learning were organized under overall coordinating bodies, the benefits would also fall into two major areas, he said.

The day to day field experiences of state agencies would be made more available to the university and thus enhance their research efforts and state agencies will be more able to use research resources of the institution right on their own doorstep rather than calling in an outside consulting agency, Nelson said.

He cautioned that the goal of creating smoothly functioning coordinating bodies is going to be as difficult for colleges and universities as it is for state and local governments.

Whatever the final solution, the top problem will always be "coordination between institutions of higher education and state and local government programs" in the effort to achieve better planning for public services in rural areas, he said.

University of Nebraska-Lincoln agricultural economist Paul Gessaman will lead a plenary session for the group Wednesday at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education. Attention will be focused on political models and planning functions and on planning framework for rural public sector analysis.

The conference will close Thursday following plenary sessions and a panel discussion directed by Dr. Tom Hady of the economic research service, U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, D.C., and Dr. Ed Moe, Cooperative State Research Service, USDA, Washington.

Resource people for the topics to be discussed Wednesday will be Prof. Ross Talbot, department of political science at Iowa State University and Prof. Dean Schreiner, department of agricultural economics, Oklahoma State University.

Nurses' Group Elects Officers

New officers were elected Tuesday by the Licensed Practical Nurses Association of Nebraska, Division 3.

Shirley Major was named president, Dixie Christensen first vice president and Susan Hadley secretary.

Lincoln Girl Hurt In Crash

A Lincoln girl was taken to the Crete Hospital Tuesday afternoon after the car she was driving was in collision with a cement truck on the east edge of Crete, according to the State Patrol.

The patrol said Betty Field, 16, suffered cuts and bruises when her car collided with the truck driven by James Cawley, 24, of Crete. Cawley was not injured.

Cawley was eastbound on Highway 33 and Miss Field was pulling onto the highway from a side street at the time of the accident.

Live Bands Depart

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — Volunteer bands have given way to recorded music at cruise ship departures because of truculent passengers. One bandsman was struck on the head by a milkshake thrown from a liner. Others were spat on, struck by empty beer cans and hit with air rifle pellets.

Taxidermist Collects Nebraska Mammals

Valentine (AP) — An Ohio taxidermist and naturalist is heading back to the Museum of Natural History of the University of Illinois with a collection of small Nebraska mammals.

The specimens from the Valentine Wildlife Refuge are part of some 1,000 collected by Woodrow Goodpaster of Cincinnati during a 2½ month trip for the museum.

Goodpaster's travels in pursuit of specimens have taken him to Louisiana, New Mexico, Texas, Arizona and Nebraska.

In Louisiana, he was unsuccessful in an attempt to trap a meadow mouse, a species that has not been found there for 75 years.

"We're trying to solve the mystery of their appearance," he says. "Farming practices there have changed and it may be the influx of rice and cotton rats who would be a natural enemy."

Goodpaster explains the importance of mice "is not always realized... they are the mainstay of all larger mammals such as the coyote, eagle and owl and are very important to the balance of nature."

A typical day will find the naturalist arising at dawn to gather the catch from his traps, returning to his base to process them and then resetting traps late in the afternoon.

Both the live trap and a spring variety, somewhat larger than the ordinary mouse trap, are used.

After measurements have been recorded, Goodpaster's wife, Lois, completes the skinning process. Goodpaster inserts cotton-wrapped wire into the legs and tail to preserve the shape and a cotton body is put inside the skin before it is sewn together.

Goodpaster has collected some 200 specimens of about nine species from the Valentine area, including meadow mice, pocket gophers, white foot and harvest mice, moles and masked shrews.

Politician Seeks Lower Speeds

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — Sen. Eugene Hill, D-Newton, Tuesday proposed that the legislature lower all speed limits on Iowa highways to 50 miles per hour to conserve fuel.

Hill said cars use 15 to 20 per cent more fuel at 70 mph than at 50 mph.

Health Dept. Review Proposal Presented

A proposed review of the health department duties and functions by the Lincoln General Hospital and Health Council was presented to the Lincoln Lancaster County Health Board Tuesday night.

Bill Joern told the group that among other things the council will review the areas of authority and responsibility of the department, the qualifications of the chief administrative officer and the impact of current and future federal funding on health department programs.

If approved by the board the program will take approximately eight months to complete.

The board members voted to go over the proposed areas to be reviewed before holding discussions with the council.

Joern said that presently 265 staff hours have been allocated to the project.

In other business, the board received a report on the deficit incurred by the Milk Inspection Program.

Les Sanger, director of the environmental health division, told the board that the total program costs exceed revenue by $33,558.

For the past 12 years the board has received 2.3¢ per hundredweight in inspection fee receipts and an inspection fee of 4.38¢ would be needed to support the cost of the program.

Executive Director Dr. George Underwood, said that the board has tried twice to get the fee raised but their efforts have always been turned down by the agriculture committee of the Legislature.

The board voted to arrange a meeting with Mid-America Milk Producers and the milk processors to discuss the matter.

The board also approved a modified travel plan for department employees.

Under the new plan employees will receive $50 per month and 6¢ per mile for the use of their private vehicles. They had been receiving $40 per month and 6¢ per mile.

Sanger said employees travel an average of 300 to 400 miles per month.

Five-year-old Lisa Cordner was mauled by a half grown tiger at the zoo last Oct. 8 when it leaped to its freedom from a pit, jumped over a retaining wall and passed through protective wires.

Riedman said Lisa has recovered from the incident, except for some scars remaining on the back and top of her head.

Suit In Omaha Tiger Attack Settled

Bellevue (UPI) — A personal injury case initiated after a young Bellevue girl was mauled by a tiger at Omaha's Henry Doorny Zoo has been settled out of court, it was learned Tuesday night.

Omaha attorney William Riedman, representing the John Cordner family of Bellevue, confirmed that the suit against the Omaha Zoological Society had been settled, but declined to disclose the dollar figure.

"We have reached an out of court settlement with representatives of the Omaha Zoological Society," Riedman said.

"Negotiations were on a purely informal basis, and it was stipulated by both parties that there would be no public exposure of the amount of the settlement."

UNL Library Cites Lack Of Administration Support

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

University of Nebraska-Lincoln librarians, responding to a consultants' report on library services, says the library has suffered from a lack of support from university administration.

"We believe that the time has come to permit the role of leadership to revert to the people trained and hired to provide library service," said the library faculty.

"We have deplored the fact that during the past several years there has been a splintering of library leadership accompanied by a general lack of support for the library from the university administration.

Request 'Not Met'
"Requests by the library administration for sufficient professional and non-professional staff, for funds to meet adequate and competitive salaries, for funds to build the total collection to a minimal point, have not been met.

"The support for the university libraries has never been commensurate with the expectations of the total university community.

"The result is dissatisfaction with service provided to the students, the availability of material to students and faculty and the low morale that exists among the library staff."

That comment on library governance and management was contained in the 12-page "library faculty response" to the student senate-financed consultants' report on the libraries.

Agreed With Report
The consultants said they found numerous problems in library operations, and the library faculty said it agreed with much of the report.

The faculty "has reacted quite positively, for the most part," to the consultants' study, the library faculty response begins.

The response also says the student-sponsored study "was one of the first efforts outside the library made in recent years to attempt to analyze why library service at Nebraska was below par."

Outlining where it agreed and disagreed with the consultants, the library faculty said:

"with the exception of C. Y. Thompson Library, dentistry library, chemistry library and the undergraduate library in Nebraska Hall, the library facilities at UNL are poorly equipped, impossible to arrange logically, inadequately lighted and poorly ventilated."

—book location is and will remain a problem for some time.

—revision of book lending policies is under way.

—reference services must be improved.

—planning could be improved.

—more funding is needed, and "nothing short of a massive infusion of funds for a period of years will suffice to bring library services to a respectable figure."

The library faculty also pointed to several mistakes in the consultants' report, mistakes which the librarians said were probably due to the brevity of the consulting team's visit.

The faculty said, for example, that the ratio of librarians to clerical workers is 35% to 65% rather than the 60% to 40% reported by the consultants.

The librarians also said technical services are as good as they can be in the present building and they said the consultants apparently misunderstood the role of the undergraduate library in Nebraska Hall.

But the library faculty said it agreed that a commission should be appointed to examine the report, form task forces to investigate recommendations and propose solutions.

Staffing, collection development, salaries, faculty relationships, planning and staff morale are matters that should be addressed jointly by the university administration, the library faculty and the library administration, the librarians said.

Contributing to staff morale problems, they said, are a number of factors, including "instances of interference by other parties relating to control of the library program."

40-Hour Work Week

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's government plans to make a five-day, 40-hour work week effective in April 1975 for government employees, who now work a half-day on Saturday.

She's Serving 30

Sgt. Maj. Bertha Billeb of Camp Pendleton, Calif., spruces up alongside husband Bill, who holds the same rank. She will retire at elaborate ceremonies Friday after becoming the first woman to serve 30 years in the Marines. When they were married, Bill says, "I was the only gunnery sergeant in the Marine Corps who could kiss a sergeant major and get away with it."

Economics Observance Planned By University

A banquet commemorating the 100th anniversary of the teaching of economics at the University of Nebraska and honoring two retiring economists will be held in Lincoln May 7.

The affair begins at 6:30 p.m. at the Knolls.

The two staff members being honored are A. Stuart Hall and Mrs. Dorothy Switzer.

Hall is a retiring professor of economics and former department chairman. Mrs. Switzer is retiring as editorial assistant in the Bureau of Business Research and managing editor of the "Nebraska Journal of Economics and Business."

Economics Prof. Charles Kennedy will speak at the banquet on the subject: "A century of economics at the University of Nebraska."

Tea To Honor Two Educators

Two longtime educators were honored Tuesday at a tea at Irving Junior High.

The two are Henry E. Goebel, a Irving science teacher who retires this spring after 42 years of teaching, and Mrs. Dorothy Carl, who has taught a variety of subjects at Irving over the past 15 years.

Goebel, a Lincoln native, attended Park School in Lincoln. His kindergarten teacher at Park, Jessie E. Keller, still lives in Lincoln and was a guest at the tea.

Natural Resource Conservation Speech Contest Is Scheduled

The 1973 Natural Resources Speech Contest for students in grades 7 through 11 will be held May 11 in the Nebraska Wesleyan University Fine Arts Auditorium.

The topic will be "Our Role in Natural Resource Conservation."

Glenn Johnson, assistant general manager of the Lower Platte South Natural Resources District (NRD), said each school in the area is requested to select one contestant for the local contest.

First and second place winners will receive awards and compete in the area contest May 11 against the winners of the Nemaha NRD local competition.

The winner of the area contest will be entered in competition with others from throughout the state at the state contest next September.

For further information, students should contact the Lower Platte South NRD or their school principal or county extension agent, Johnson said.

"It's no small thing to have the... disturbing aggravation ended and peace of mind restored."

K-State Coaches Fired

Kansas State will wind up spring football drills Saturday with its annual intra-squad game and head coach Vince Gibson says the two coaches he designated to direct the two units a year ago won't be back — not as coaches, anyway.

"We appreciated the efforts of Bob Hentzen and Dave Wright," Gibson jokes. "But I was pressured into a situation where a change was imperative."

Hentzen and Wright are sports editors of a Manhattan and Topeka newspaper. The game ended in a disappointing 19-19 tie which left many fans disgruntled.

"What was bad," adds Gibson, "was the fact that Hentzen and Wright seemed to be satisfied with a tie game. We can never allow that attitude to exist here again."

As replacements, this year's guest coaches will be Kansas State President James A. McCain and Kansas Governor Robert Docking. Both are avid football fans and have secretly admitted ambitions as a youth to become a head football coach.

In his acceptance of the guest coach role, Docking hedged on the type game his team would play, but did give what is perhaps the longest quote ever recorded in a pre-game analysis.

Docking said:

"I have great admiration for Dr. McCain. He's a tough coach. He's got a tough ball club. We respect his boys. But, we are not afraid of them. His boys put their pants on one leg at a time just like ours. We'll give it all our effort. We have a strong line. Got speed in the backfield. We'll go into this game confident but not overly confident. We'll just play the best game we can, hope for the breaks, try to control the tempo of the game, keep the momentum, give it a full 60 minutes and move the ball. If we can do this, we have a good chance of making a respectable showing. If we can put this all together with pride, we're gonna win."

McCain refused to be moved by the Governor's soft and complimentary attitude toward his own squad and coaching ability.

"I accept the Governor's challenge," said McCain, "but I must not let my team be intimidated by his long unbroken string of victories. We intend to match his conservative style of play with a wide open offense and a defense that will defy the imagination."

First Boys-Girls Meet

Glenn E. Turner, Lancaster County Superintendent of Schools, corrects a statement made in this paper recently in which it was reported that a boys-girls track meet at Syracuse was believed to be the first in the state in which the combined scores were used to determine the team champion.

"The Lancaster County Activities Association track and field meet held at Nebraska Wesleyan on May 6, 1933, combined both boys' and girls' totals to determine the final scores," Turner says.

"Waverly was first with 75 2/3 points. Rokeby second with 54 5/6 and Hickman third with 41 1/3. These were followed by Malcolm 39, Raymond 22 1/2, Sprague-Martell 17, Hallam 4, Bennet 3 1/3, Firth 2 1/2 and Roca 0. This information comes from a copy of an old school paper dated May 16, 1933.

"Dr. Merle A. Stoneman, now deceased, and I started competitive high school girls' track and field and volleyball in Lancaster County in 1929. There were some fine high school girls athletes in Lancaster County over forty years ago."

OU-USC First Choice?

Officials at Nebraska and UCLA may not have been the first people ABC-TV executives asked to move their football game to Sept. 8 for national television exposure.

Oklahoma City sports columnist Volney Meece says the first request made by ABC-TV was to Southern Cal and Oklahoma officials to pit last season's No. 1 and No. 2-rated teams in a season-opening game on Sept. 8.

According to Meece, OU turned 'em down since moving the game from Sept. 28 to Sept. 8 would have left the Sooners idle for two straight weeks, from a Sept. 15 date with Baylor to an Oct. 6 engagement with Miami of Florida.

The ineligibility of quarterback Kerry Jackson at Oklahoma means the Sooners will have to play the 1973 season with a quarterback, who has never played a down of varsity football.

The Sooners have done it twice before in recent years, with Bob Warrmark in 1966 and Jack Mildren in 1969. In Warrmark's rookie year, Oklahoma was 4-3 in the Big Eight and 6-4 overall. With Mildren as a rookie signal caller OU had identical 4-3 and 6-4 marks.

Oklahoma State's 1-0 loss to Oklahoma in their series opener last weekend ended the Cowboys hopes of becoming only the fourth Big Eight baseball champion to go undefeated in league play.

The only three teams to turn the trick were Missouri, 19-0, in 1964, Iowa State, 8-0, in 1936 and Oklahoma, 7-0, in 1935.

Proving that you don't have to have a big scholarship budget to have a winning baseball team is Colorado, which is battling Oklahoma and Oklahoma State for the Big Eight title.

Of the eight Colorado regulars, five came to CU without a scholarship and another, John Stearns, came on a football grant-in-aid.

New York Acquires Tight End Ballman

New York (AP) — Gary Ballman, a 10-year tight end, was acquired on waivers by the New York Giants Tuesday from the Philadelphia Eagles in a National Football League transaction.

Ballman, 32, played five years with the Pittsburgh Steelers and the last five with the Eagles. He has career marks of 320 receptions for 5,328 yards and 37 touchdowns.

NBA Draft Concludes Feud

Associated Press

Olympian Doug Collins of Illinois State was the first player picked Tuesday in the National Basketball Association's 1973 college draft which had been beset by a "family fight" that had forced two postponements and had threatened a third.

Philadelphia, announcing it was participating in the draft under protest, picked Collins after a 76ers' bid for a temporary restraining order to stay, the draft was rejected by a judge of the Second U.S. Court of Appeals in New York earlier in the day.

The 76ers announced they planned further legal action to have reinstated NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy's original ruling that would have given Philadelphia the first round pick of Seattle as a result of the battle over John Brisker, a former American Basketball Association player who signed with Seattle.

The Cleveland Cavaliers traded away two starters and a late first-round draft choice to the Portland Trail Blazers to wind up with five draft picks in the first three rounds.

Seattle, in its first-round pick, the fourth of the draft, took Mike Green, a small-college All-American from Louisiana Tech.

In between the choosing of Collins and Green, Cleveland took Jim Brewer, a defensive stalwart from Minnesota, on a pick obtained from Portland and Buffalo took Providence backcourt whiz Ernie DiGregorio, an All-American.

To get the choice of Brewer, Cleveland traded to Portland center Rich Roberson and forward John Johnson plus a later first round draft choice.

The Cavaliers also got four other draft picks from Portland.

Portland then used the first round draft pick to get in the trade to take Barry Parkhill of Virginia.

Two All-Americans were selected next—Kermit Alexander of American University by Los Angeles on a pick obtained from Cleveland and Olympian Ed Ratleff of Long Beach State by Houston.

Before Seattle picked Green, Philadelphia broke in on the conference call to say it was picking Mike Bantom of St. Joseph's, Pa., under Kennedy's original ruling which had been overruled by a federal judge and then changed by the NBA's Board of Governors.

Philadelphia was ruled out of order and Seattle picked Green. Ron Behagen, another Minnesota standout, was taken by Kansas City-Omaha; Phoenix picked Bantom; and Atlanta, using a choice acquired from Detroit, selected Olympian Dwight Jones, a University of Houston junior, as a hardship case.

Atlanta then took John Brown of Missouri, Golden State took Kevin Joyce of South Carolina; Chicago picked 7-foot Kevin Kunnert of Iowa; the Baltimore Bullets, who will be called the Capital Bullets next season, chose Nick Westphalen of Illinois; New York took Mel Davis of St. John's, N.Y.; Milwaukee took 7-foot Swen Nater.

Concordia Tops NWU In Dual Track Meet

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Concordia won the mile relay Tuesday afternoon at Magee Stadium to hold off Nebraska Wesleyan and take a 77-68 dual track meet win.

The Bulldogs were protecting a four-point lead, 72-68, going into the mile relay which was the last event with the winning relay team getting five points and the other none.

Mike Strubing led off for the Plainsmen and gave Lee Richardson about a five-yard lead.

Concordia's Ken Boehm overtook Richardson and exchanged to Tom Marty with about a five-yard advantage. NWU's Jim French caught Marty and passed the baton to anchorman Bob Graham with about a five-yard margin.

However, Centennial freshman Lynn Stuhr overhauled Graham at the top of the backstretch and held off a late charge by the former Lincoln High standout.

Graham, who is the defending Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference champion in the 880, was also beaten by another Bulldog freshman, Dave Cloeter, in the 880.

Cloeter passed Graham and Richardson coming off the last curve to win in the school record time of 1:53.8, which bettered Rich Berg's 1:54.6 set in 1971.

Boehm also won the 440 by beating defending NIAC champion Mike Strubing in the school record time of :49.6. The old Concordia school mark in the 440 was :49.8 set by Tom Heinz in 1967.

"This was a great emotional win for us," Concordia coach Larry Oetting said.

The Plainsmen won the NIAC outdoor track meet last year and then took the NIAC indoor this year.

NWU wasn't without several bright spots including a sweep of the long jump.

Kurt Nielsen, who also won the high jump, won the long jump with identical twin brother Chris Nielsen second and teammate Steve Joekel third.

The Plainsmen's Ron Green captured the mile in 4:15.7 over Concordia distance standouts Dan Cloeter and Dean Grages.

NWU's Dave Folkerts won the discus and finished second in the shot put.

And the Plainsmen's Art Smith edged out Stuhr to win the 100 and ran the leadoff leg on NWU's winning 440-yard relay team.

Both Concordia and NWU will compete Friday and Saturday in Des Moines, Iowa, in the Drake Relays.

Grand Island—Southside Boy scored his first victory this season by scampering past five foes to win the featured seventh race Tuesday here at Fonner Park.

Owned by Ken Kirby and Fritz Engel, the 7-year-old chestnut gelding was clocked in 1:12.45 for the 6-furlong allowance race for 4-year-olds and up.

In Southside Boy's only other start this season, he shared a second-place effort here on April 11 when he was beaten by a head by Loons Buster.

As the 6-5 favorite, Southside Boy returned $4.60, $3.00 and $2.40, while O.J. Becker's Bisque placed for $3.00 and $2.20 and J. & C. Jorjensen's Terrace showed for $2.40.

Buehrer Gains Fourth Win

... ERRORS HURT NEBRASKA

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Splitting a baseball doubleheader with Creighton University was hardly a cause of joy for Nebraska coach Tony Sharpe.

"After we won the first game (6-1), I didn't think we were mentally ready to play the second one (a 7-1 loss to the Bluejays Tuesday at the NU Diamond)," he said. "We got lackadaisical and careless and that's the way you get beat."

Four NU errors in two innings aided the Omahans' objectives in the second game as CU tallied only one earned run—a home run by first baseman Ron Thoram in the second inning.

But the third and fourth frames were disasters for the Huskers as a three-run homer by shortstop Steve Naval and a sacrifice fly by centerfielder Jim Lemon (son of former Kansas City Royals' manager Bob Lemon) plated four unearned runs in the third.

Two additional Husker errors and two walks pushed two more Bluejays across the plate in the fourth and the Huskers never threatened thereafter.

Freshman righthander Gary McCabe, in hiking his record to 5-1, allowed only four hits. Only shortstop Bryant Akisada, with a first-inning double, rapped an extra base hit.

But the first game was a different matter as Ryan Kurosaki and Dave Buehrer combined for a nifty six-hitter as Nebraska never trailed.

The Huskers tallied twice in the second frame as singles by leftfielder Rich Sanger, catcher Dick Wilson and an error by Bluejay catcher Joe Butkiewicz brought the Huskers an early 2-0 advantage.

NU answered a Creighton tally in the third with another run in the Husker third and a three-run explosion in the sixth inning handed Buehrer, a freshman righthander from Downers Grove, Ill., his fourth pitching verdict without a loss.

"Buehrer looked fine in relief today," Sharpe said. "But we're still looking for a third starter (to complement Dennis O'Doherty and Kurosaki).

"He (Buehrer) made his first start on Saturday (lasting 1-23 innings and giving up three runs against Colorado)," Sharpe said. "He didn't do very well in that, but he always looks good in relief."

Another optimistic sign for NU was the hitting of third baseman Dick Anderson and Akisada. Anderson rapped tree singles while Akisada achieved two hits and made several outstanding defensive plays.

The contests left Creighton with a 23-10 overall record and the Huskers at 10-8-1 overall.

It was the first baseball meeting between the two schools, according to NU records, since 1906 when Creighton prevailed twice, 4-2 and 8-3.

Nebraska, 4-5 in Big Eight action resumes league play by hosting Kansas State at the NU Diamond in a Friday doubleheader at 1:30 p.m. and a single game (1 p.m.) on Saturday.

Celtics Remain Confident

BOSTON (AP) — Although they trail the New York Knicks-erobckers three games to one in the Eastern semifinal playoffs of the National Basketball Association, the Boston Celtics still appeared confident on the eve of the fifth game in the best-of-seven series Wednesday night at Boston Garden.

Celtics' captain John Havlicek, who suffered a painful shoulder bruise last Friday, may not be able to play but no final decision has been made on his availability.

The team's physician, Dr. Thomas Silva, said the stiffness in Havlicek's shoulder muscle is gone and another day's rest would be helpful.

"I'm optimistic," Dr. Silva said. "The team is optimistic, too," said guard Don Chaney. "We have a lot of faith and pride, and we're not about to concede this series to the Knicks. It's going to be tough but it's not impossible."

What Chaney probably had in mind is that the Celtics still remain loose despite their trailing position and the probable absence of Havlicek. But taking three straight games from the Knicks to win the series looks to many people an almost impossible task.

Earl "The Pearl" Monroe is listed as a doubtful starter for the Knicks after suffering a hip injury in a collision with Havlicek last Friday night. Monroe didn't play in Sunday's game, won by New York in double overtime.

The officiating in Sunday's game remained a heated topic, at least with Boston writers who reported it was "horribly one-sided."

Chaney fouled out with 6:38 left in the third period, after he had held the Knicks' Walt Frazier to nine points up to that point. The Boston writers agreed the sixth foul was a good call but said Chaney questioned some of the earlier fouls called against him. Rookie Paul Westphal, under extreme pressure in two overtime periods, impressed the Knicks with his poise.

He made a couple of jump shots to give Boston a lead in the first overtime period but with 11 seconds left in the period officials charged him with fouling Phil Jackson and the Knicks' reserve forward sank both shots to tie the score and force the second overtime.

Lakers Hobbled With Key Players Hurt

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Headed for an apparent easy victory over the Golden State Warriors in their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff set, the defending champion Los Angeles Lakers must now surmount injury problems.

They lead 3-1 in the series, but in facing Golden State on Wednesday night at the Forum, the Lakers have two key players hobbled—starting forward Jim McMillian with a knee injury and No. 1 reserve Keith Erickson with a bad ankle.

Neither played in the second half at Oakland on Monday night when the Warriors rallied for a 117-100 victory against the team which had whipped them by 56 points on Saturday night. But both are listed as "probable" for Wednesday night.

Dr. Robert Kerlan, the Lakers' physician, said, "McMillian's left knee was still sore and got worse. He has some stretched ligaments."

Hurt on Saturday night, McMillian played 18 minutes in the second game at Oakland on Monday and scored eight points.

Still the All-American from Michigan will be in a reserve role for Wednesday night's 11 p.m. EST start at the Forum.

If McMillian can't start for the

Walton To Be Top ABA Pick?

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Walton has said he will finish his career next season at UCLA rather than turn pro for a pile of money, but the San Diego Conquistadors were still expected to pick him Wednesday in the American Basketball Association draft.

The ABA also is expected to release the names of players selected in its secret draft last January before picking at least 10 rounds of college seniors and then at least two rounds of undergraduates.

Among the players reported as having been picked in the secret draft were Jim Brewer of Minnesota and Billy Schaffer of St. John's of New York, by the New York Nets; Barry Parkhill of the University of Virginia, by Virginia, and Larry Kenon of Memphis State, by Memphis.

Commissioner Walter Kennedy of the rival National Basketball Association said in announcing names of players considered hardship cases before opening the NBA draft Tuesday that Kenon had already been signed by an ABA club.

Brewer and Parkhill were first-round picks in the NBA draft—Brewer by Cleveland and Parkhill by Portland—and Schaffer was a second-round choice, by Los Angeles.

San Diego will pick first and if it does take Walton it should amount to nothing more than a gesture—at least for the year. The UCLA star, an All-American in each of his first two varsity seasons, has said he definitely will play out his college career.

The order of selecting, after San Diego, is Memphis, San Antonio, New York, Virginia, Denver, Indiana, Utah, Kentucky and Carolina.

The ABA draft twice was delayed because Commissioner Bob Carlson said his league would not pick until after the NBA held its draft. The NBA draft was postponed twice because of league in-fighting over John Brisker, a former ABA player who signed with Seattle of the NBA.

Rams' Rentzel Pleads Guilty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lance Rentzel, Los Angeles Rams' wide receiver, pleaded guilty Tuesday to a charge of marijuana possession but plans to appeal on grounds that the evidence against him was obtained illegally.

The 29-year-old NFL veteran entered the plea before Superior Court Judge William Caldecott, who will sentence Rentzel on May 22.

Rentzel later told a newsman he had no comment about his football future but said he believes the conviction will be set aside on appeal.

Attorneys for Rentzel plan to appeal on grounds that the evidence in the case was inadmissible because it was obtained during an illegal search of his home.

Attorney Robert Lee said the judge had denied a pretrial motion to suppress the evidence and that Rentzel can appeal the ruling even though he pleaded guilty.

"We'll go as far as we have to to get this reversed," said Lee. "I fully expect it to be reversed."

Rentzel and film producer William S. Bellasco were indicted by the county grand jury in January after police said they found 1 1/2 pounds of marijuana, 19 cocaine tablets, two grams of hashish, some cocaine and amphetamines during a search of both men's homes.

The warrant for the searches was based on information from a telephone repairman who said he had seen a bag of marijuana brought by Rentzel to Bellasco's Bel Air home.

Rentzel's attorneys contend that the repairman's report did not constitute probable cause and that the warrant was issued illegally.

Two other drug-related charges growing out of the incident will be dismissed against Rentzel, Deputy Dist. Atty. Robert Altman said.

Bellasco's case was "diverted"—in effect placing him on probation as long as his record remains clean.

Mail Carriers Tally Pheasants
Nebraska's rural mail carriers are again conducting their annual spring tally of pheasants seen along their routes, and this data will be used by the Game and Parks Commission in comparing the ringneck population with past years.

The rural mailmen have cooperated in such counts since 1945, giving game biologists information valuable in pheasant management. On advantage this survey had over other methods is that it covers the entire state at the same time, something that would be impossible with the limited number of game biologists and conservation officers available. Each year, about 700 of the approximately 800 carriers asked to fill out survey cards, do so.

In addition to the spring count, rural mailmen participate in two other surveys. One is a post-season sex-ratio count conducted in mid-winter, which gives an indication of the year's pheasant harvest. The other is conducted in early fall and gives an indication of the summer's production of young birds. The early fall count by carriers is one of the more accurate indicators of the ringneck populations that will be available for the fall hunt.

Fairbury Golfers Triumph

Fairbury — Fairbury edged Lincoln Northeast by one stroke on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff here Tuesday afternoon to capture first place in the Fairbury Junior College Invitational golf meet.

Friend rallied behind Dave Paulson's 81 and Tom Kozisek's 82 to take the Class B title.

In Class A, Lincoln High's Doug Smith fired a 37-34-71 to take medalist honors. Northeast's Tom Westover was second with 35-37-72.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
